State Five-Acre Corn Winner Grows Only Record Over 200 Bushels

BY ANDY ANDREWS

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Some sport teams have a "magic number" that will either ensure their hopes for championship playoffs or the championship itself.

For M. Lamar Miller, corn growing contestant, the magic number is 7877. Cargill 7877, that is.

"This variety turned out the best, so I entered it in the contest," said Miller about his entry in the state farm show a few weeks ago in Harrisburg. At the show, Miller won the Five-Acre Corn Club contest, producing 209.4 bushels per acre. In the 1989 growing year, hampered by a dismally wet spring, his entry was the only record over 200 bushels per acre in the ear regular harvest class.

High in awards

So how did he do it? And how does this Manheim-area cash crop and dairy farmer place so high in awards both in the state and the nation?

According to Miller, it's a combination of obtaining good soil fertility, the right seed genetics, and the bushel yield advantage from his "no-till" planting method.

"The quality of seed is important," said Miller, "but the top yield nutrients have a lot to do with how the crops will turn out. The no-till corn has a 10 to 20 bushel per acre yield advantage over tilled stock. And I was able to obtain more even seed emergence on the field where I picked the winner of the contest."

Fertility is essential, and Miller obtains a soil test every year. To improve the soil test, Miller spreads a liquid cow manure. Miller's soil has tested high for nitrates, phosphorous, potash, and "micronutrients" such as zinc, magnesium, calcium, and other minerals. Sulphur, combined with the nitrogen, improves nutrient efficiency.

More Vegetable Growers Needed For Dutch Country Growers Co-op

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — "Why spend $3,000 to truck produce from California when it's right at our door?" asks Gideon Stoltzfus.

Stoltzfus is president of Dutch Country Growers, a co-op for vegetable growers. He said, "When the co-op began six years ago, members knocked on buyers' doors, but now, buyers are knocking on our doors."

PSU Dairy Science Club Sets Contest

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State Dairy Judging Contest is March 24, 1990. The Penn State Dairy Science Club will be holding its annual Spring Judging Contest on Saturday, March 24, 1990 at the Penn State Ag Arena, at 10:00 a.m. This event is open to all 4-H and FFA members.

The contest consists of five divisions: Sr. 4-H, Jr. 4-H, FFA, Collegiate Amateur, and Collegiate Professional. There have been some changes in the Jr. 4-H division. Following lunch at the Ag Arena, there will be a workshop on judging and oral reasons for the Jr. 4-H contestants and coaches. However, some requests have been made for the Jr. 4-H'ers to give reasons in the contest. Therefore, Jr. 4-H division contestants will have the option to give one set of oral reasons or else attend the workshops. They cannot do both activities. Their reasons scores will not count in calculating high individuals and teams in this division. However, the three highest scoring individuals in junior reasons will be awarded. Jr. 4-H contestants giving reasons must be pre-entered and designated on the entry form. You cannot sign up the day of the contest to give Jr. 4-H oral reasons.

After Additional Tests FDA Says National Milk Supply Safe

KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

FREDERICK, Md. — "Much ado about nothing" may be the conclusion of most people in the dairy industry to the latest national flap over the issue of drug residues in milk.

Last week the federal Food and Drug Administration, responding to claims that the nation's milk supply was compromised by minute quantities of antibiotics, issued a statement upholding its integrity. The FDA said its study of 70 retail milk samples from 14 cities turned up no evidence of sulfamethazine and no confirmation of any positive readings of other antibiotics.

"Our study indicates that the American dairy farmer is using animal drugs carefully and conscientiously and that the milk supply does not contain unsafe drug residues," said Gerald Guest, director of FDA's Center for Veterinary Medicine.

The agency conducted its test after the Wall Street Journal, in a front page article Dec. 29, reported evidence of contamination in a similar study it conducted in conjunction with the Center for Science in the Public Interest, a Washington-based consumer

Atlantic Breeders Show Good Year

MT. JOY (Lancaster Co.) — Semen sales were strong in 1989 for members of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative (ABC), according to officials. But members will have to be prepared to make decisions about the future.

Members of Region 4 ABC were told they are to receive a $383,256 return on business last year. A printed report showed that net savings from the year's business amounted to a patronage dividend of 6.7 percent. They were given the message during the cooperative's annual banquet-meeting, held to review business and honor oustanding members.

According to Alan Bair, in charge of member and public relations for the cooperative, the cooperative "saw extremely good growth in techincal service and the

Inside Each Bag of Funk's G-Hybrids and Hoffman Soybeans

Performance. That's the bottom line. Performance that's measured by such characteristics as standability, grain quality, disease resistance and, most important, yields.

You'll get that performance from Funk's G-Hybrids like G-4543, the top yielding hybrid in Delaware Performance Trials in 1986 and 1987. Or Funk's G-4626, one of the highest yielding varieties in southern Pennsylvania and Maryland during the past three years. Or from Hoffman soybeans like Hoffman 359, a leader in 1987 Maryland trials in Queenstown and Quantico.

Get your ticket to superior performance by contacting your local Hoffman Seed representative or our Landisville office. Call toll free: 1-800-233-0137. In PA: 1-800-732-0456.

Delmarva Broiler Fryer Market

Wednesday, February 7, 1990

Movement of ready-to-cook whole fryers was fair today. Most buyers were looking for product in addition to their regular commitments. Supplies were in close balance with current interest. Less than truckiot asking prices were higher at 53-68 cents. Live supplies were barely adequate. Average live weights were lighter than desired and forcing some processors to curtail normal operations. Today's processing schedules were moderate. The trade sentiment was fully steady to firm. In the parts complex, supplies of cutlets were about adequate, all other items were short of buyer needs.

OPINION

Another Vo-Ag Going?

All parents and landowners living in the Berks County political subdivision known as the Kutztown Area School District need to make some free time Monday evening to attend the school board meeting.

Promising to be the focus of attention at the meeting is the district's vocational agriculture program.

According to what we've been told and what we've read, the vo-ag program is at risk of disappearing.

Dr. Richard J. Karr, the district superintendent, told us that there are only 22 students currently enrolled in the Kutztown vocational program. According to newspaper reports, others say there are more if you count the students that are enrolled with less than two-credits worth of classes.

Our opinion is that vo-ag programs in Kutztown and elsewhere should be growing; that what the United States and Pennsylvania and, yes, Kutztown School District, needs is more production, especially production agriculture.

Instead of breaking vo-ag into many small parts and distributing them among the other classes, we think that all students would gain if vo-ag were strengthened and could serve as a proving or hands-on laboratory for science classes and health classes.

We see the issue this way: we have lost so much and many kinds of production in the past 25 years because of union-management failings, failures to modernize and expand, and because we made international trade deals that effectively eliminated the need for U.S. production. We can not afford to lose production agriculture.

All the ingenuity and creativity that is supposed to be allowed to grow under a democratic lifestyle is not being given a chance to take seed.

We think that thoughts and ideas learned in the classroom can be practiced and made practical in a vo-ag program. The academic and practical need each other, but they should not be merged into one; they should go hand-in-hand.

The district board meeting is set for 7 p.m. Monday in the library of the Kutztown Area High School your opinion won't be known or felt, if you don't make time to attend.

To Be Aware Of "Kids and Farm Safety"

A great deal of effort is being placed on safety for farm kids. This is excellent because far too many children are injured and killed on farms.

In another month the spring cropping season will be starting. That means that a lot of farm machines will be put into operation and things will really be moving. Small children like to become a part of this action and ask to ride on machinery or even operate some of the smaller tractors. It might take nerve to refuse them at times; however, for their own protection they should not become involved. Many serious accidents have happened because "Dad" or "Grandad" took them along.

Where there are small children, all machinery operators should be especially careful of their exact location. Farm machinery and small children do not mix.

To Control External Parasites

External parasites, such as lice, mites and mange can become more severe as the winter progresses, according to Glenn Shirk, Extension Dairy Agent. In addition to causing rough hair coats, slower weight gains, lower milk production and discomfort for animals, excessive parasite loads can cause anemia and a host of secondary anemic-related problems such as a weaker immune response, slower rates of healing, poorer response to treatments and lower conception rates. Parasites can also spread skin diseases such as ringworm.

To reduce the risk of parasites, clip dairy cattle that are housed for the winter, and apply approved insecticides in accordance with label directions.

To Recognize Lime For Weed Control

You have never heard us recommend lime for weed control; however, indirectly lime is important to obtain good herbicide weed control. Both research and farm experience has indicated that herbicides are not as effective in sour soil. So, for best control with chemicals, the soil test requirement must be satisfied.

Many poor weed control experiences have been reported in sour soils. A complete soil test will indicate the amount of lime needed. There are many other advantages to crop production in addition to better herbicide action.

To Know Sewage Sludge Content

The use of sewage on farmland is becoming more common. As the amount of this material increases, the farmers should be aware of the danger of excessive application. There can be a problem of too much sludge causing a build-up of heavy metals such as zinc, copper, cadmium and cobalt. When these metals become too high in the soil they are toxic to plants.

Farmers that utilize sewage sludge are urged to require a test of the materials in order to know the exact mineral and fertilizer content. Disposal plants must provide this test information for their farmers in order to know what is being done. Both the sewage and the soil can be tested through the Penn State Testing Laboratory. Don't apply sludge without knowing the mineral build-up in the soil.

The Cooperative Extension is an affirmative action, equal opportunity educational institution.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

HOW LOW SHOULD YOU STOOP?
February 11, 1990

Background Scripture: John 13:1-30.
Devotional Reading: John 13:21-30.

Apart from the Church of the Brethren and a few small sects, footwashing has never really caught on in Christianity. If you really want to be unpopular, just try recommending it at the next meeting of your church board.

It is true that this practice would not have quite the same practicality in today's world where almost all of us wear shoes instead of sandals. In Jesus' day, washing the feet of visitors met both a practical need — after tramping the dusty roads and streets — and customs of hospitality.

A Personal Reaction

Still, having said all that, it strikes me that the real objection to this practice today is more personal than historical. To wash the feet of another person seems just too subservient for most of us. Many of us would find ourselves humiliated by doing this. It would seem that this would be stooping too low and be too threatening to our own self-respect.

Today we place a great deal of emphasis upon looking out for our own selves and interests, of maintaining our own self-esteem. Nothing seems so threatening to self-esteem than such a menial act that requires us to both figuratively and literally stoop so low. But if that is so, how could Jesus do it? How could the Son of God, the Messiah, permit himself to stoop to such a demeaning position? The answer, it seems to me, is that Jesus did not feel demeaned by this act. His self-worth was never dependent upon what others thought of him. To willingly serve another person is not demeaning to us, unless we think it is and act as if it is.

Gaining, Not Losing

Look at Jesus. At no point in this narrative does Jesus look even slightly humiliated or demeaned. Even though he stoops low before each of his disciples, Jesus looks no less authoritative in these verses. He is still the Lord and Teacher they have respected and honored. He has lost nothing. In fact, he has gained something by virtue of this humble deed.

All too often, I have considered that I am "too important" to stoop to this or that activity. That's why these words hit me — and perhaps you? — right between the eyes: "Do you know what I have done to you? You call me Teacher and Lord; and you are right, for so I am. If I then, your Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, you also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that you also should do as I have done to you. Truly, truly, I say to you, a servant is not greater than his master . . ."

If Jesus was not "too important" to stoop to wash his disciples' feet, neither is it possible for me to be "too important" to perform humble acts of service. So, how low should I stoop to meet the needs of a brother or sister?

The obvious answer: just as low as he did.

PLANT MORE MILK.

More milk per acre means more profit per acre, and W-L Alfalfas have proven their advantage - in milk and in dollars.

For example, WL 317 produced 148 pounds of milk per acre over the top competitors in recent tests conducted by W-L Research. The results were derived from a program that calculates milk production based of forage quality. These tests clearly show that, pound for pound, it means more to a dairyman to plant higher quality alfalfa with high yields, than to plant a high-yielding alfalfa with lower quality.

The potential dollars per acre advantage using W-L Alfalfa came in at $92 greater milk yield per acre over the top competing varieties. And, that milk per acre value advantage with W-L Alfalfa adds up to greater profitability.

Time after time, top producers have selected W-L Alfalfa varieties that reward them with high quality, low cost feed.

It all adds up to more milk - and more profit - per acre.

Plant W-L Alfalfas.

TURN PURE EXPENSE INTO SURE PROFIT UP TO 6 MONTHS SOONER.

Until she's in the milking string, she's nothing but a drain on your pocketbook. And the fastest, most economical way to get her there, and control coccidiosis at the same time, is with AGWAY COMPLETE CALF I WITH BOVATEC or AGWAY GRO:PAK™ WITH BOVATEC.

Approved for heifers up to freshening time, Agway Feeds with Bovatec consistently improve growth rates, resulting in faster weight gain, earlier breeding, calving and profits for you—up to six months earlier than with conventional feeds.

Research has shown that dairy calves fed Bovatec at 0.5 mg/lb of body weight per day, from 1-12 weeks, gained an average increase of 25 lbs. over the control calves.

So don't wait another day. Call today and get your heifers in the milking string up to six months sooner.

LOW TOXIN CROPS DESERATELY NEEDED THE DEMAND IS FAR EXCEEDING THE SUPPLY

WHITE SOYBEANS AT $12 PER BU., for making soy milk and soy foods. With our fertilizer yield is about the same as ordinary yellow beans.

YELLOW SOYBEANS AT $8.00 PER BU. for making the same as above and also for livestock feeding. Yield is about 70 to 83 bu. per acre with our seed and fertilizer.

CORN AT $3.00 PER BU. for livestock and poultry feed. It is critically needed so that farmers can keep up their organic egg and broiler market, as well as use it for cattle, dairy and hogs.

SPELTZ AT $10 PER HUNDRED WEIGHT. Yields about 150 bu. per acre on our fertilizer and our seed. Straw is a little longer than wheat. Plant at the same time. It is gaining in popularity because it yields so good, and is an excellent feed for all kinds of livestock. Cows give more milk. One midwest farmer wanted to plant 600 acres. We have an order for 100,000 bu. overseas, but don't have enough for USA orders.

The demand being much higher than the supply is what sets the high price. Livestock farmers have proven their livestock do much better, including less problems, on our detoxifying, carbon and mineral rich fertilizer grown crops. Some don't have enough land for the size of their herds and flocks, so they want to buy organic crops. One soyfood factory wants a 24 ton load every week and there are other factories from coast to coast.

A poultryman wants to buy 3,000 acres of corn beside the 300 acres he has himself. Another one wants 2 semi loads corn per week besides soybeans. There are more big customers clamoring for it. One sells his eggs for a nice premium in Lancaster Co. Organic Egg cartons, to a distributor in Maryland, and was out of organic feed. Please don't let it happen again. Many more big ones will start as the good news gets around. Also a naturcl minded feed mill is getting plenty of requests for better feed, more organic grown.

The demand is increasing faster than the supply which looks like it will last a long time. Livestock farmers are wising up faster to AG PROGRESS than grain growers.

At the same time you will be reducing pollution of yours and your neighbor's water. A heart operation like mine (Ezek. 36:26) would make you love your neighbor, rather than destroying God's soil (Rev. 11:18) as it says in the original.

DON'T DELAY because the white soybean seed supply is nearly all sold. And the yellow beans you may need to clean yourself if you order late. Ours produce more because they have developed wide branches of the years on Nutri carb fertilizer with 250 or more pods per stalk Same as corn which gives more than one ear on very rich soil.

ALSO DON'T DELAY to apply our fertilizer because it takes time to detoxify the soil to get low toxin crops. Our Nutri Carb fertilizer is the fastest material that we know of to pull toxins out. Using it early, this winter yet, you may possibly meet the low toxin criteria for our market even if you used some herbicide. If you miss the mark, I can find you a better than average market because some farmers will have to take the best they can get. We have customers farming up to 500 acres corn and beans with very little weeds, without herbicides. Our program reduces weeds.

State Five-Acre Corn Winner Grows Only Record Ov

top yield nutrients have a lot to do with growing a championship crop.

"I use a special way of inserting nitrogen into the ground," said Miller. The 30 percent liquid nitrogen is placed in the ground by a process which injects it, using a tool bar with knives, between rows of corn at a depth of 8 inches. The nitrogen is inserted into the ground at the root locations, and all acres are covered with this process.

"The nitrogen is actually 'knifed' into the soil," said Miller. "Because the knives are skinny, they loosen up the ground between rows. This allows air and water to penetrate deep into the soil."

Soybean stalks left from the previous harvests are ground up and mulched into the ground. Miller said the stalks are an excellent way to ensure water retention in the soil.

Average corn yield

With this method, Miller has been able to obtain an average corn yield of about 200 bushels per acre. The seed yield estimate is 203 down to 151.

"I plant the crop early in April, about April 10 each year," he said. "A lot of farmers think that is too early, and it may be too cold yet. They wait till the last week in May or early June. But I've had good success planting corn early. It seems the variety of corn has extra vigor and provides a good crop under cold conditions."

Miller has done well with his method of farming. Many contests he has entered have proven successful. Last week he obtained the results to the National Corn Growers Association contest, where he placed first in Pennsylvania for his non-till, non-irrigated crop. Nationwide, Miller placed ninth out of 241 entries. For the 1989 crop at the state farm show, he won the Five-Acre Corn Club contest, up against 96 other entries.

In addition, Miller won the 1987 and 1988 National Corn Growers Association Corn Yield contests. In 1988, Miller was awarded the Young Farmer Earn Corn Contest.

In 1984, Miller became a Cargill dealer. "There were no distributors or dealers of Cargill Hybrid corn in the area," he said. "They're one of the five major seed manufacturing companies."

Miller said companies such as Cargill produce all in-breds and genetic stock.

"Smaller companies purchase genetic stock that isn't owned privately from universities," he said. "Cargill produces its own stock. But no other corn variety can withstand this year's amount of rain. It really has the yield punch compared to other varieties. Research has shown Cargill corn has the highest yield of any they have released. This year, the weather cooperated and we had the right soil conditions and fertility."

Enjoys the challenge

Miller has been farming for most of his life and enjoys the challenge. "I grew up with my father on the farm, so I've been farming all my life," he said. "I've been operating cash-rented land for 11 years."

Miller's farm covers 90 acres, owned by his father, Andrew G. Miller, who will turn 51 this year. Miller's grandfather, Andrew N. Miller, bought the land in 1929.

Miller rents land in 12 other locations, including 210 acres nearby, 200 acres in Elizabethtown, and 200 in Hershey.

Miller works with his father on a dairy business, with 80 head of Holstein.

Raised Holsteins

"We raised Holsteins ever since Grandpa purchased the farm. Dad married and moved in to take over the operation. I haven't taken over the dairy business yet.

"I like crop farming better. I work with the cows every morning and night, except in the prime of planting or harvesting. Dad runs the dairy operation and I help. I drive the tractor around a bit.

"I also do custom corn planting for farmers. They count on me doing it. If I have time, I'll do it for them."

The Millers also raise wheat, barley, and soybeans as cash crops. They grow alfalfa and hay for the dairy operation.

Successful farming

Miller's successful farming involves an exact combination of soil fertility and the right seed genetics. "It's a lot of both mixed together," he said. "We used a variety plow of seed. We planted four rows of different varieties of corn side by side and the best harvest we placed in the contest."

Miller lives with his wife, Tricia, and two dogs, Cody and Princess, just outside of Manheim. "The dogs are often hard to watch after," Miller said. But he enjoys the time he spends with his family, as well as the farm work.

"I enjoy farming because it's a challenge. I don't like the early hours — I prefer late hours, actually." He is awake at 6:00 a.m. for farm chores. But he is used to putting in long hours, especially in the harvest season, where rest is at a premium.

"Sometimes, if it's going to rain during harvest or planting, I'll go all night without stopping, and do 800-900 acres of custom combining for other farmers," he said. "It's what you have to do sometimes."

Computer Helps Match People With Jobs

ANDY ANDREWS

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Looking through the classifieds used to be one way to find a job. Now, with the help of a computer program, an employer looking for help or an employee looking for work can sign up with the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) Member Services Organization to find what they want.

Using a special computer database, PFA's Farm Labor Listing Service can match people with available jobs by job category.

"Certain farmers need help and people who are looking for work can use this information service," said Richard E. Denison, general manager, PFA Members' Service Corp.

A prospective employer or employee can fill out a Job Search Assistance form, available from PFA, and describe their job abilities and requirements. The PFA will then run the data through the computer and match employee needs with employer wants.

The PFA began the special service in September 1989 after requests were made by several farmers in Indiana County, Pennsylvania. An employer must be a member of PFA to use the service, but prospective employees do not have to join PFA.

Since late last year, ads have appeared in various publications listing the service.

"We've had about half a dozen responses so far," said Denison. "We'll continue to run the service for a couple of years to see how it works."

FDA Says National Milk Supply Safe

group. The center, testing 20 retail milk samples from the Washington area, found four of them, or 20 percent, that contained sulfa drugs at a level between 5 and 10 parts per billion. The Journal, which tested 50 samples from 10 cities, found 11, or 22 percent, containing traces of sulfa drugs in the same range. It also found five samples containing streptomycin and three containing erythromycin in excess of 100 parts per billion and three containing smaller traces of penicillin.

Much of the concern generated by these results has focused on sulfamethazine, a sulfa drug that is suspected of being a carcinogen. Both the FDA and the dairy industry have taken a number of steps to eliminate it from the milk supply following a FDA survey in March 1988 that indicated widespread contamination in retail milk samples in a range from 0.8 to 40 parts per billion.

Farmers, for instance, were asked by the National Milk Producers Federation to discontinue use of the drug on all of their cattle, although it is still labelled for certain uses on cattle under 20 months of age. And the FDA, working through the National Conference on Interstate Milk Shipments, initiated new rules for the labelling and use of drugs on farm.

The actions appeared to have greatly reduced, if not altogether eliminated, traces of sulfamethazine in milk. In a follow-up study, FDA found just 1.5 percent of the samples with sulfamethazine levels exceeding its so-called "enforcement-action limit" of 10 parts per billion. However, the Journal's work raised new questions and once again sparked negative publicity for the dairy industry, as other newspapers and media reported the story.

Although the headlines have tended to convey negative connotations along the lines of "milk tainted with drugs," the story is far from a simple one.

Within the scientific community, there is disagreement, for instance, about the effectiveness and accuracy of the various tests used to detect antibiotics at such minute levels. The Journal's results were produced by scientists at Rutgers University using a test known as Charm II, a test that some people claim produces "false positives." The FDA, in its follow-up survey, also employed Charm II, but attempted as well to confirm any positives by using another test. However, at a recent congressional hearing on the issue, there was criticism of the FDA's testing procedure as well.

Even if everyone agreed on the nature of the test results, there would still be the question of interpretation. Does the presence of antibiotics at levels of several parts per billion -- an amount almost too small to comprehend -- truly constitute a public health hazard? Again, the scientific community is divided.

The upshot is that the industry, particularly the farmers, are stuck in a grey no man's land where conduct is difficult to determine. Part of the problem is that drug testing capacity has outstripped knowledge of what the results mean, said Ed Coughlin, a National Milk official. The FDA has set zero tolerances for the presence of most antibiotics in milk, but, in actual practice, it sets limits according to the perceived accuracy of its testing methods. The 10-part-per-billion enforcement-action limit for sulfamethazine, for instance, is the limit at which FDA officials think they can accurately detect the drug and has little to do with safety, Coughlin said.

On farm, veterinarians and farmers are hampered by the fact that very few antibiotics actually are labelled for use on lactating cows. Another grey area has developed over the use of drugs "extra label," or using drugs not specifically labelled for such use in situations where an animal's life may be threatened. The practice makes veterinarians and farmers responsible for setting milk withdrawal times that no one knows for sure, said Doug Carmel, an Extension veterinarian at the University of Maryland.

The system is full of question marks. Antibiotics that should only be used on cows extra label with the consent of a veterinarian can be purchased over the counter or from traveling drug salesmen and some people allege this leads to widespread misuse. Among animal drug specialists, there is even disagreement over whether sulfamethazine could be prescribed for extra-label use, although they all agreed that it shouldn't be.

"There's no way that we can safely use sulfamethazine in lactating dairy cows today," said Don Breiner, field services manager for Atlantic Dairy Cooperative.

Black shank and blue mold are two of the biggest enemies a leaf of burley or flue-cured can have. And on a cost-per-acre basis, nothing protects tobacco plants from these diseases like Ridomil.®

Just one application (at labelled rates) in the field before transplanting fights black shank, blue mold and Pythium all season long.

Ridomil stops disease on contact in the soil. Then its systemic action allows it to be absorbed into the plant through the roots, keeping it safe from disease. You get a healthier plant, higher quality tobacco.

So this season, use Ridomil. Before a few of tobacco's biggest enemies beat your bottom line black and blue.

Dairy Specialist Penn State

Too often, reproductive efficiency is overlooked as a major area where efficiency of producing milk can be increased.

Several years ago it was estimated that the cost of reproductive failure amounted to approximately seven percent of the gross dairy income. This cost indicates clearly that reproductive inefficiency is a management area requiring a concentrated effort toward improvement.

In order to improve reproductive performance and maintain a profitable calving interval, the herd manager should be aware of the herd reproductive status, how the herd situation compares to the optimum, and where management strengths and deficiencies exist.

The Pennsylvania DHIA Reproductive Management Report provides important reproductive information on each cow and a summary of herd reproductive status. Let us review the information available on these reports, specifically the core parameters for reproduction which are currently being standardized among DHIA record processing centers across the country. A complete explanation of all the reproductive information is printed on the back of each page of the DHIA Reproductive Management Report.

Average Days Open

Average days open is a frequently used measure of reproductive performance. It is the average interval that cows remain non-pregnant (open) after their last calving. For pregnant cows it is the number of days from calving to the last service prior to pregnancy diagnosis. It is calculated as the number of days from last calving to last test date for cows not yet serviced and to last breeding date for cows that have been serviced but not yet confirmed pregnant. These figures do not include cows designated as "do not breed" or open cows fresh less than 60 days (voluntary waiting period), unless they have been serviced. A combined days open average for all these categories is also calculated.

Days open is also converted to projected calving intervals by merely adding the average breed gestation length to days open. Either parameter is an overall indication of herd reproductive performance.

Goals to strive for are 110 days open or less and a 12.8-month calving interval.

Herd averages can sometimes be misleading. Thus the DHIA summary divides the herd by number of days open into five categories (less than 60 days, 60-89, 90-119, 120-149, and more than 150 days). As cows freshen, become pregnant, repeat to service or are culled, the percentage of cows in each category changes. Nevertheless, herd managers should strive to maintain less than 10% of the herd open more than 150 days. Cows in this category are destined for long calving intervals and should be evaluated for culling.

Actually, as cows approach 120 days open they are considered problem cows. Such cows require special management and veterinary attention. Days open and projected calving interval have one limitation - they do not consider cows that failed to calve and were culled for breeding problems.

Services Per Pregnancy

Services per pregnancy (S/P), sometimes called services per conception, can be calculated several ways. For pregnant cows it is the total number of services for all pregnant cows divided by the number of pregnant cows.

Services per pregnancy is also determined for the group that have been serviced and not yet confirmed pregnant. Some people refer to this as services per cow.

In Pennsylvania a service is not included in the summary if there are less than 45 days since date of last service and no confirmed pregnancy or repeat service was reported. After 45 days the cow is considered open if she has not been reported as pregnant. Expect a higher average number of services for this group because generally more of the repeat breeders are in this group.

As more repeat breeders finally become pregnant, the average services for the cows serviced not yet determined pregnant and the pregnant group will begin to approximate each other. Thus average services for the cows not yet determined pregnant provides an advanced indication of the number of services per pregnancy in the future.

Greater than 90% of the herd should be pregnant to three services or less. Goals for the S/P for the pregnant group and the group not yet confirmed pregnant should be 1.5 and 1.7, respectively.

If a cow is bred twice between DHIA test dates, both breeding dates should be reported. They will be included in the S/C average. However, only the latest breeding date will appear in the BRED column.

Services per pregnancy gives an indirect indication of the status of reproductive health, accuracy of heat detection, timing of insemination and AI producers. However, it cannot be used to pinpoint a specific problem.

Average Days To Service

The final reproductive core parameter is average days to first service. This is the average interval from calving to first service for all cows in the herd. The goal should be 75 days to first service. It is a reasonably accurate figure for evaluating the efficiency of heat detection early in lactation.

Another reproductive index related to heat detection is the average days between breedings. The average intervals for the herd should be less than 30 days with at least 60% of the intervals between 18 to 24 days. This is an estimate of the efficiency of heat detection after first service.

This efficiency can be determined by dividing the average estrous cycle length (21 days) by the average breeding interval for the herd and multiplying by 100%. An average interval of 30 days would result in a heat detection efficiency of 70%.

Too many 38-45 and 55-65 day intervals between breedings which are multiples of the normal estrous cycle interval, also indicate a herd problem with missed heats. Early embryonic mortality can also contribute to extended intervals between breedings.

These core parameters are interrelated. When used together, they should provide an overall view of the herd reproductive situation and areas of requiring attention.

As with most measures of dairy herd management each parameter should be used in conjunction with other measures. For example, if the average days open for a herd is 110 days (12.8 month calving interval) but each cow requires 2.2 services to conceive, then the problem is not excessive days to first service but more likely problems associated with AI procedures (semen handling, timing of insemination or insemination technique), uterine health or inaccurate heat detection.

Herd managers cannot set goals or priorities unless they are aware of the current situation. Records can be a critical tool when trying to build efficiency into the herd operation. However, records are only as useful as they are accurate. Make sure that all calving dates, breedings and pregnancy data are recorded and reported in a timely manner to your DHIA supervisor.

Why risk a crop loss

TRY A FOUR-HYBRID BUY INSTEAD

by Willard Jones

I'm Willard Jones, Doebler's sales manager, with a practical crop insurance idea that won't cost you a penny.

I got a call from a big grower last fall who wanted to drop an old favorite for Doebler 86XA.

It didn't matter that the other hybrid led the yield parade in droughty 1988. He wanted 86XA.

Quickest way to lose a sale is to tell your customer he's wrong. But this guy is a friend.

"Sure 86XA shelled big in 1989," I admit. "But we had rain, rain, rain."

My friend sputters.

"Why not plant 10 more bushels of 86XA and cut back your other hybrids accordingly," I propose. Our rule of thumb goes like this: Use at least four hybrids. Never plant more than 10% of your acres to a new hybrid. Probably less. And never plant over half your crop to any one hybrid — Doebler's or otherwise.

Just makes sense. You're buying an insurance policy against a major crop loss and never pay a premium.

Juggling maturities also can reduce risk, of course. I like 20-60-20. That's 60% of your hybrids in your maturity range, 20% a little earlier for frost insurance and 20% a little later to catch those extra bushels on a great growing year.

Picking the right hybrids is basic, of course. Here's some corn data on our best yielding hybrids that will help:

New ideas can reduce risks, too

Catch up on latest in corn research and practices March 1 at the Pennsylvania Corn Conference, Penn Harris Motor Inn, Routes 11 and 15, Camp Hill.

Seminar Highlights Natural Medicine

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — C. Edgar Sheaffer, V.M.D., homeopathic education, left, recently spoke at Yoder's Restaurant to about 36 farmers on the use of homeopathic medicine for livestock. "This procedure uses natural substances to aid in the treatment of animal injury and illness," said Sheaffer. Leon Hess, of Hess Farm Supply, who sells homeopathic kits to farmers, sponsored the seminar.

Farmer Co-Ops Needed More Than Ever

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Chairman Russel L. Hanlin of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives today predicted that farmer cooperatives will be needed more in the 1990s than ever before in our history.

Citing trends toward less government support, more direct and open world trade, and more regulation in food safety and the environment, Hanlin stressed the value of farmers working together through their co-ops to meet these challenges.

Speaking at the opening general session of NCFC's 61st annual meeting at the Sheraton Harbor Island Hotel, the co-op leader emphasized the continuing need to have a strong and effective voice in Washington to ensure that the concerns of farmers and their cooperatives are adequately addressed. He pointed to the success of the 1985 Farm Bill as an example of the Council's involvement.

"Although many factors have led to improvements in the farm economy," said Hanlin, "there is no doubt that the 1985 Farm Bill set the stage for recovery."

The cooperative executive, who also serves as president and CEO of Sunkist Growers, Inc., said that while recovery is far from complete, the improved farm economy has allowed farmers to reduce their heavy debt load and enjoy a better financial position than just a few short years ago.

Focusing on the 1990s, Hanlin

Helfrick Says Budget Failed To Stress Agriculture

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The governor's budget address promised little for the state's number one industry, according to senator Edward Helfrick (R-27).

Helfrick said the governor stressed past budget successes in the area of agriculture, rather than offering any substantial support for the future.

"The governor said that funding for agriculture has been increased over the past four years," said Helfrick. "But I didn't hear anything about greater funding efforts for this year in the areas of agricultural promotion and research."

Instead, the line item for agricultural promotion in the proposed General Fund is actually reduced from $590,000 to $500,000 in 1990-91. Line items for mushroom promotion and apple marketing are eliminated, and funding for the Milk Marketing Board is cut by $40,000. The agricultural research line item is also reduced from $3,000,000 to $2,500,000.

"This is the same funding level that the governor asked for last year," said Helfrick, referring to agricultural research. "But Senate and House Republicans successfully rallied for more."

The senator noted that many of the funding increases in last year's budget were the result of support by Senate and House Republicans.

Helfrick added that the governor has failed to spend 77 percent of the money set aside for agricultural promotion in the 1989-90 state budget.

"Agriculture is the state's biggest industry," said Helfrick. "If we want to see economic growth, we have to make an investment in the future of our farms."

All in all, Helfrick expressed disappointment with the governor's failure to stress agriculture in his message, mentioning it only briefly at the end of the address.

"When he did talk about agriculture, Governor Casey highlighted increased funding for a plan to replace the roof of the Farm Show Building in Harrisburg," said Helfrick. "Money was set aside for that purpose last year, and it wasn't spent. What will happen in the coming year?"

Musser Wins 4-H 1989 Shepherd of the Year

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MT. JOY (Lancaster Co.) — The bad news: There has been a decline in Lancaster County 4-H members. And the Southeast District Beef Show and New Holland Beef Club have been cancelled.

The Red Rose 4-H Award was presented to Heidi Quanbeck.

The good news: The Lancaster County 4-H "is celebrating a year of rebuilding," said Chester D. Hughes, livestock extension agent, at the 4-H banquet held here last week.

Awards for championship beef, sheep, and special recognition were presented at the annual banquet attended by more than 300 4-H members, family, and sponsors.

"In our shows, we see a lot of the effort, money, and value emerge," said Hughes. "A lot of values have been added to our program in the past years."

Awards are 'catalysts'

Hughes said the awards are "catalysts" to improve the judging and presentation skills of the club members.

A special Novice Shepherd Award, sponsored by Creutzburg Livestock Supplies of Paradise, was presented to twin brothers Jeff and Jerry Bollinger. The award acknowledges outstanding members for their contributions and progress made by members newly active in sheep exhbiting.

The 1989 Shepherd of the Year Award, sponsored by the Intelligencer Journal of Lancaster, was presented to Diane Musser, Elizabethtown, president of the 4-H Sheep Club.

"This award highlights an outstanding member participating in the club and is given to an eligible candidate not always for best sheep or best presentation," said Frank Stoltzfus, a sheep club leader who announced the winner, "but someone picked by the 4-H leaders who is actively involved with the FFA, the school, the 4-H Club itself — all those factors put together."

Atlantic Breeders

sign-up of members increased."

In a statement, Bair said, "Atlantic fulfilled its primary goal of providing the service and genetic improvement needs of members, who responded through increased sales volume and greater use of the top sires. Insemination services performed by technicians increased over 1988, while semen sales to direct breeders were nearly the same."

Last year's increased sales totaled $2,388,409. Bair said that most of the increase in sales resulted outside of member territory through a practice of trading semen with Federated Genetics. He said new strategies are being called for.

"We're looking to the future. Cow numbers are dropping within the membership, perhaps not with this group, but within the county, and the milk check is up," Bair said.

"Cow density is also shifting. It's moving from western Pennsylvania and eastern Pennsylvania to central Pennsylvania - to Bedford, Blair and Huntingdon counties," he said. "It's still in the membership area, but we have to move the service to the cows."

According to Bair, some semen service offices are going to be eliminated in areas with a dropping number of dairy farms and cows; new service offices will be going up in the growth areas.

The growth of the company sales is also cause to reflect on future paths, Bair said.

"We now have a bigger share of the market, but we're seeing fewer cows. Market share growth is going to be more difficult in the future," he said.

According to Bair, members must make some decisions about how they want to proceed. "It's your cooperative, you own it," he told the group.

He said cow and bull health and disease control are going to be ever increasing in importance for several reasons.

"You don't just live in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania and the United States," Bair said. "We live in a world-wide society and we have to prepare to live in a global society."

Bair said other countries will not purchase semen that has a reputation or carries fear of disease. To better protect the health of the bulls in stock, Bair said that recently "non-essential personnel" have been prohibited from getting near the bulls.

Pricing strategies may have to change also, he said. Members have to decide whether they want to have a few high quality, high cost bulls to support the rest of the operation, or do they want to bring up the price of the average bull somewhat to make it pay for itself.

According to Bair, bull reliability isn't all what it seems to be. He warned that consumers must know how a bulls percentages were acquired. "Don't be fooled by reliability," he said, "know how the bull was sampled. Know the semen supplier."

He said that with new methods of determining reliability "It's now easy to get a 70 percent."

Members honored during the banquet-meeting had milk production at least 10 percent higher than the state average and used semen produced by ABC to service more than two-thirds of their cows: Earl Landis with 52.7 Holsteins, averaged 19,652 milk and 759 pounds of fat and 72 percent ABC; Robert Brandt, 54.9 Holsteins, 20,425 milk, 742 fat and 72 percent ABC; Marvin K. Witmer, 65.1 Holsteins, 19,376 milk, 757 fat, and 96 percent ABC; and Donald and Gerald Risser, Meadow Vista Farm, 150.8 cows, 20,908 milk, 782 fat and 83 percent ABC.

Receiving recognition for high herd milk production and high use of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative semen in the Mt. Joy area are, from left, Earl Landis, Robert Brandt, Marvin K. Witmer, and Donald and Gerald Risser of Meadow Vista Farm.

In other business, members voted for resource promotion committeemen. However, officials will not tally and finalize results until later.

Wolff Praises Proposed Budget

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff said today that Gov. Robert P. Casey's proposed budget will allow the Animal Health Commission to provide the best protection ever for livestock and poultry on Pennsylvania farms.

"By integrating various animal health programs under the umbrella of the commission, our farmers will benefit from flexible programs controlled by experts instead of by budget writers who would have to decide this June what we might need next June," said Wolff.

"This way the programs can be tailored to protect our farmers, and we can decide where to put the money when threats to animal health occur."

Wolff pointed out that under previous budgets, money for animal health was earmarked for specific categories such as the Livestock Diagnostic Contract, the Poultry Laboratory Diagnostic Contract, Field Investigation and Johne's Disease.

Wolff also praised the Commonwealth's support for Agricultural promotion, which has increased by 170 percent in the past four budgets.

"Many producers and processors are excited about Pennsylvania's new efforts to promote agriculture," Wolff said.

"Our new logo is gaining recognition, our export program provides direct benefits to our leading industry, and our county fairs have never received more state support."

Wolff added that in the coming year, the Commonwealth will spend $3.9 million to replace the Farm Show Roof and complete heating, lighting and electrical improvements prior to the 75th anniversary show in 1991.

pointed to a number of issues of concern to farmers and their cooperatives. These include taxes, energy, transportation, the 1990 Farm Bill, GATT negotiations, environmental concerns, and food safety.

The NCFC chairman also said recent events in Eastern Europe, improved relations with the Soviet Union, and formation of an integrated Western Europe in 1992 will affect the political and economic climate for U.S. agriculture, including cooperatives.

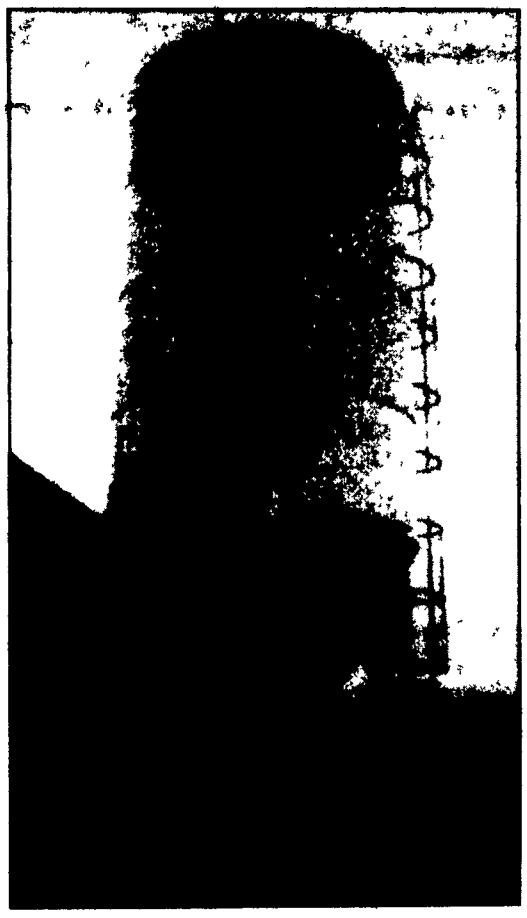
The fiberdome Difference . . .

Fiberdome's new multi-sectional fiberglass bin is ideal for a variety of uses requiring normal farm use, including high moisture corn feed rations, supplement storage, hog facilities, poultry, milking parlors and horse feeding.

If you're thinking of feed storage, it makes sense to consider a fiberdome built storage bin which gives you the best protection available. By guarding against temperature extremes and moisture, it virtually eliminates spoilage.

Sturdy ladder system is permanently attached to the bin roof and sidewall. Optional safety cage is available with 23-29 ton bins requiring safety cage. Ladder and cage both feature zinc and yellow di-chromate coating.

Pneumatic fill system - Fiberdome features a 4" diameter; 16 gauge fill tube, with a zinc and yellow di-chromate coating Vent system highlights a heavy duty PVC 6" diameter; 3/16" wall Both attached with heavy duty brackets



12-30 Ton multi-sectional bin

Special Features - 70 degree hopper angle, lets feed flow evenly down the hopper instead of sliding down the middle. No more feed hanging up along the sides of the bin. Huge 26" Hopper opening - most other bins have 14" or 16" openings. Fiberdome's is the largest in the industry.

Unique 5-year warranty - We want you to have the same confidence in our product that we have. That's why your Fiberdome bulk storage bin comes with an exclusive 5-year warranty against defects in materials and workmanship under normal use. (Less Augers)

Bin legs are made from 3½" diameter, 7 gauge tubing, and are supported with ¼" steel formed saddles. Both feature zinc and yellow di-chromate coating.

Variable Degree Boot Designed and built with the flexibility to adapt to most auger angles desired

Award is the "ultimate" award, said Zoann Parker, Lancaster 4-H coordinator. "It is the member who excels the most, who keeps a good record book, and who shows outstanding leadership."

The Red Rose 4-H Award, announced by Hughes and presented by Max Smith, retired county extension director, was given to Heidi Quanbeck, Columbia. This award is presented to an "excellent member who helps other members, who keeps an excellent record book, and who is a team leader," said Parker. "It is a citizenship award given for leadership and with a leaning toward personal growth."

Lancaster County boasts the largest 4-H Club in the state, with 4,092 members and 651 volunteer leaders. The members visit farms and packing industries to help learn how to raise, feed, judge, present, and learn all aspects of sheep and beef livestock.

"We work in cooperation with USDA packers and stockyards," said Sue Ann Claudon, USDA representative and livestock judging coach. "Any 4-H member is eligible to practice. We have a four-member juding team. Most of them are 17 to 18 years old and have practiced since they were 9 or 10 years old. They learn more with practice."

More practices

The judging team is then assembled and goes on to Penn State Days from August 6 to 10. "The closer we get to the contest, the more practices we have," said Claudon. "We visit the packing plants and the farms — they've all been very cooperative."

4-H members become involved with raising the livestock early on to prepare them for the State Days, said Claudon. After the four are picked, they compete at the eight fairs held in Lancaster County and exhibit at the state farm show in Harrisburg. The members then travel to Kansas City, Missouri and Louisville, Kentucky for the national livestock championships.

As the industry changes, said Claudon, so must the coaches guide them.

"It has been great working with the local producers," she said. "People who work with the 4-H Program have been very cooperative and that's wonderful."

Following is a list of awards presented at the banquet.

REPAIR & EMERGENCY SERVICE

Dutch Country Growers Co-op

The co-op, located in Quarryville, is using a renovated chicken house with approximately 10,000 square feet and a 1,200-feet cooler.

"We need more produce to satisfy the demand," a co-op spokesman said. "We got a good reputation for supplying top quality produce and we're hoping other farmers will help us meet the demand."

The co-op said demand for fresh, ready-to-serve produce is increasing. Basically the co-op supplies fresh vegetables such as peppers, pumpkin, squash, tomatoes, peas, and string beans. The co-op sells the fresh vegetables to chain stores in Boston, Philadelphia, New York, and Florida.

Traditionally California and Florida brokers have dominated the market by buying produce from growers who have 1,000 acres. The co-op would like to supply local markets, but to do so they must provide a reliable supply of produce. To do so, the co-op needs more growers.

"Small farms work well for vegetable growing, but we need lots of them," a co-op spokesman said.

Although the co-op does not want to prepare frozen vegetables, they do see a demand for having vegetables scrubbed and ready to pop into a microwave or pan.

For this reason, they are experimenting with a soup mix that contains an assortment of vegetables in one tray. Carrots, celery, broccoli, cauliflower, kale and parsley are scrubbed and packaged and need to be stored in the refrigerator until ready to use.

Peppers are one of the co-ops main products. Farmers bring 20-bushel bins of peppers that are dumped into equipment the co-op has purchased. The machine washes and then sponges off the moisture. The peppers roll on to a picking table where workers pick out those with spots. The peppers are sorted according to size and packed in boxes.

The co-op has also experimented with packing small potatoes called creamers or pea potatoes. These potatoes, often discarded by Pennsylvania Dutch cooks, are now considered the vegetable de jour.

To keep busy during off-season months, the co-op is packaging squash ready to microwave. "There's a big market for it in the New England area where people eat it like we do potatoes," David Smucker, secretary of the co-op, said.

New Jersey, which has always been considered a garden state, is losing acreage in a rapid rate to development.

Recently a packing house in Avondale closed and Dutch Growers purchased some of the packing equipment and hired the former warehouse manager to oversee the Lancaster operation.

California and Florida uses migrant workers for hand labor. Their cheap labor makes it more difficult to compete against because they release 1,600 migrants in 500 acres of tomatoes and pick only one picking said a co-op spokesman. The co-op plans to hire migrant workers this summer and have them travel from farm to farm to harvest crops.

Co-op members would then be responsible for planting and weeding. The co-op has growers with greenhouses to furnish plants for farmers, if preferred. The co-op will check on the fields if disease problems exist and they work closely with the extension agents. The farmer is responsible for getting the product to the packing house.

Co-op members sign an agreement that tells what he will plant and deliver. The co-op guarantees a market at market price. Prices are based on a weekly average and on grade.

When the co-op first began, it did not have a board. Now the seven-member co-op board negotiates for the lease of the building, advances payment, establishs policy and hires workers.

All board members are farmers.

Last year the co-op had 30 to 35 farmers. This year they hope for many more.

The co-op would like to hire a general manager whose primary responsibilities are telephone sales and overseeing harvesting dates and schedules.

"It's important for us to know the trends," Smucker said. To do so, the board attends vegetable conferences and speak to buyers and producers.

"In this area farms primarily raise tobacco and have dairy cows, but there is no reason why vegetable farming cannot be as profitable," co-op board members stress.

Growers interested in joining the co-op should attend a March 8, meeting at 7 p.m. The meeting will focus on vegetable growing and offers credits for pesticide licensing. It will be held at the co-op's headquarters at 76 Pumping Station Road, Quarryville. Call (717) 786-8500 for more information.

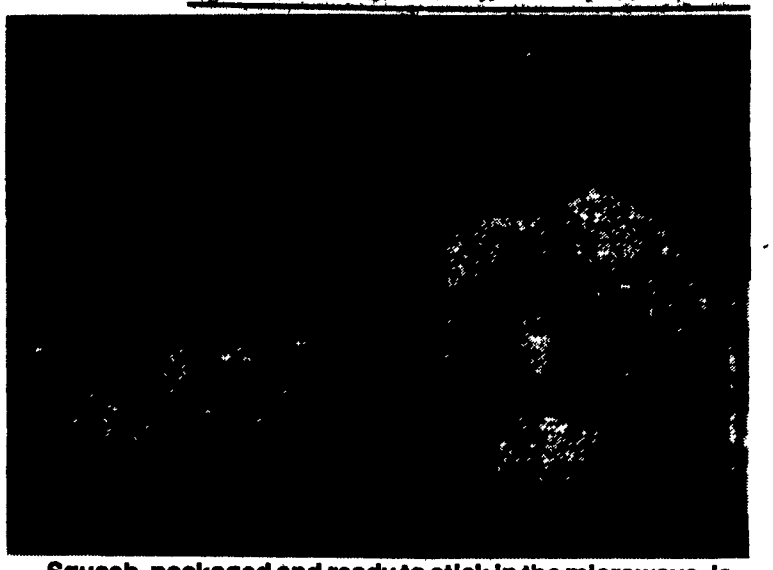
Below is the recipe that appears on packages of squash that are in great demand in the New England states.

Nutmeg Squash

3 packages peeled butternut squash, cut in chunks
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons brown sugar
½ tablespoon salt
½ tablespoon ground nutmeg

In a large saucepan cook squash, covered, in boiling salted water, about 25 minutes or until tender. Mash pulp. If squash seems too thin, return to saucepan, cook uncoverd to desired consistency. Stir in butter, brown sugar, salt and nutmeg. Serve. Makes 6 servings.

Truckloads of squash need to be washed, cut, peeled and packaged. Dutch Country Growers daily package 20-ounce containers.



Squash, packaged and ready to stick in the microwave, is being marketed by Dutch Country Growers for the New England market.

Spokesperson for Ag Chosen To Respond To Urban Concerns

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Nord Parkinson, an agri-businessman from Berks County, captured the 1990 Spokesperson for Agriculture title after posing as Senator Pork Barrel in the contest held during the Pennsylvania Young Farmers' convention in Lancaster.

The contest, sponsored by Keystone Farm Credit Assocation, chooses a Pennsylvania spokesperson who will compete for the national title during the the National Young Farmer Educational Institute held in Denver, Colorado in December 1990. The association includes more than 25,000 farmers and ranchers between the ages of 18 and 40.

Parkinson, a farm consultant for Anthony's Feed Mill, Strausstown, said that working in the agricultural field and being a consumer gives him first hand knowledge of the concerns both face. He'd like to serve as a link in helping consumers and farmers understand each other.

"We face critical changes in the next 10 years and it is essential to understand each other's concerns." Parkinson said.

In his 5-minute prepared presentation, Parkinson spoke on "Consumers Benefit From the Use of Biotechnolgy."

Wearing a 10-gallon hat and smoking a cigar, Pakinson portrayed a southern senator who said, "I don't usually talk about anything that doesn't directly fill my pockets, but right now I got somethin' mighty powerful to get off my chest. There's some things goin' on in agriculture that could have as much impact as Texas succeedin' from the Union."

He then when on to tell how biotechnolgy ranging from using gelatin as an artificial seed coating, breeding pest resistance into genetics of various plants to developing special bacteria to digest waste into useful energy can help to support and improve today's lifestyles. The speech mixed humor with politics and agricultural progress.

Parkinson graduated from an

Aflatoxin Threat Slight

WASHINGTON — The U.S. corn crop for 1989 is likely to escape the high levels of aflatoxin contamination that hurt the 1988 crop, a U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist says.

The weather conditions necessary for unusually high aflatoxin levels generally were not present nationally last year, according to microbiologist Donald T. Wicklow of USDA's Agricultural Research Service. Consequently, no widespread outbreaks have been reported in the months following the corn harvest, as occurred in 1988.

Wicklow, based at the ARS Northern Regional Research Center at Peoria, Ill., works on mycotoxin research, including aflatoxin. Aflatoxin, a toxic chemical produced by two soil fungi, Aspergillus flavus and A. parasiticus, has been linked to cancer in laboratory animals.

He said A. flavus fungus has been most commonly found in peanuts and corn, especially in hot and dry weather as in 1988.

But in Iowa, the nation's leading corn state with estimated production of more than 1.4 billion bushels last year, the scenario seen last summer wasn't likely to lead to aflatoxin contamination, said Charles R. Hurburgh. Hurburgh is an assistant professor of agricultural engineering at Iowa State University at Ames.

"August is the key month, when the grain is making its dry matter, the 'food' for the aflatoxin," he said. "But we had a reasonably cool August, with nighttime lows in the 60s. That's not going to produce aflatoxin."

By comparison, Hurburgh said, temperatures in Iowa in August 1988 hit the 100-degree mark during the day and stayed in the 80s at night.

"Evening temperatures are critical for the fungus," Wicklow explained. "If the temperatures reach 80 to 85 degrees F at night when the corn kernels are maturing, the plant reacts in a way that can lead to stress cracks in the seed. These are an open door to the fungus."

According to Wicklow, concerns about aflatoxin often focus on the southeastern states, in part because of that region's typically hotter weather during the period when the corn is maturing. But statistics for 1988 show that of the four southeastern states — North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida — only North Carolina produced as much as 1 percent of the U.S. corn crop, with 1.6 percent of the nation's approximately 4.93 billion bushels.

Corn will not necessarily be contaminated simply because it was grown in a field that previously produced aflatoxin-tainted corn, Wicklow said. He also said that corn will not pick up aflatoxin from being stored in bins that had held contaminated corn. Nor does transporting corn in ships that previously carried aflatoxin-contaminated grain pose a problem.

USDA's Federal Grain Inspection Service will check grain for aflatoxin upon request by either the buyer or seller of the grain, an FGIS spokesman said. Private industry inspectors may conduct checks if they suspect a problem exists.

Pork Porducers Hold Annual Meeting

BY VAL VANTASSEL
Berks Co. Correspondent

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.)— "You wait in line for three or four hours for a pair of shoes. You don't ask what color, because you take what is offered. You finally reach the head of the line. You ask the vendor if he has any size seven shoes. He says no, only size four are available. You buy a pair of size four shoes for ten rubles. Then you walk down the line and sell the shoes for 20 rubles to someone who doesn't want to stand in line. Welcome to the black market. You're in the Soviet Union," said Carol Mercner at the annual meeting of the Eastern Pork Producers.

The group, composed of swine farmers in a five-county area, had a chance to share Mercner's slides and insights from her three-week trip to the USSR. An employee of the Keystone Farm Credit Service in the Westchester office, Mercner spent three weeks in the Soviet Union with a group of ag. engineers.

Mercner had a chance to visit a number of the national monuments and museums during her trip. She found many similarities between people in the USA and USSR.

"Their children look much the same as ours. They have pollution just as we have. Their school students visit their monuments just as ours do. They also have functioning churches. In fact, everywhere we went we were taken to see churches," Mercner said.

However, Mercner said she noticed a big difference in Soviet agriculture. "Soviets cannot own land. There are two types of farms, the collective and the state controlled farm. In the state controlled farm the government appoints the general manager and tells them what to grow. In a collective farm the general manager is elected. The farmers grow what they want to. The state contracts to buy part of their product and anything they grow in excess of that amount they can do with as they wish. We were taken to all collective farms," she said.

Farms are large organizations. "There are approximately 3,000 people on the collective farms we visited. Workers make up 2,000 of that number and children, older people and students compose the other thousand," Mercner stated.

Collective operations also find unique things to do with their profits. "One farm we visited built an amusement park. Another intended to build an ice skating rink in the future," Mercner said.

Despite the upscale entertainments, Mercner said she didn't find the agriculture on pare with that in the United States.

"Soviet cows produce 60 percent less milk than those in our country. Pigs eat twice as much to attain market weight and it takes them twice as long. Often they are fed bread, because it is subsidized so it's cheaper to feed. We've all heard about Russian potatoes, but 80 percent never reach the market. They are lost in storage and transportation," Mercner said.

"One general manager told me 'We do not care for profit so a lot of times we do not do things the best way'," Mercner said.

Still, like many farmers, the Soviets were particularly proud of at least some of their farm equipment. "They showed off their 14 row corn planters and told us that soon they would have a 16-row variety," Mercner said.

They were also pleased with the work their ladies do in the ag operations. "We were shown a 16-cow milking parlor and told that women do most of the milking. When I asked why, I was told that they were very good at it," Mercner said.

While Mercner would like to return to the USSR for another visit she expressed great appreciation for our country. "I'll conclude my presentation with my four favorite words. Thank God for America."

After Mercner's slide show, president Steve Burkhart announced that the group would be taking a trip to Hatfield Packing and Mopac on Feb. 27.

In other business, a short business session was conducted. Elected as officers for the next year were Steve Burkhart, president; Dennis Cooper, vice president; Carl Cooper, secretary and Paul Bittner, treasurer.

Lucky Shoppers Learn Value

Vicki Hilton of Columbia had a $183.31 paid out of her grocery bill of $240.23.

She said, "I didn't have any inkling this was going to be my lucky day — I thought it was going to be an expensive day going grocery shopping."

Three lucky shoppers were randomly chosen while shopping at Stauffers of Kissel Hill, Lititz.

"The lucky shopper idea was developed to emphasize just how much of the so called food dollar is actually spent on food," said Phoebe Bitler, coordinator of the event.

Only "real food" items were paid by the association. Snack food and non-food items were not reimbursed.

In addition to Hilton, the other lucky shoppers who found this out included Lisa Blankennyer of Lancaster. Of her $64.74 total cash register tape, 68 percent was real food items; 32 percent of $20.50 were non-food items.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Lichty, Lancaster, had 66 percent of their $46.91 total paid; 34 percent was considered non-food items.

The media blitz was sponsored by Muncy Chief Hybrids in conjuction with the Pennsylvania Young Farmers. Milton Hoffman, Muncy president, provided $200 for the lucky shoppers.

Nord Parkinson, 1990 PA Ag Spokesperson; Jerry Krone and Henry Zerby spoke with consumers about agriculture and food issues during a 1½ -hour visit to the store.

Bitler said, "Americans often complain about their food bill, but really they should be grateful for the quality and quantity readily available at only a fraction of the cost other countries must spend. Americans spend less than 16 percent on income on food while Chinese spend about 60 percent on food."

SOMETIMES FIXING THE FIGHT IS THE SMARTEST THING TO DO.

To knock out foxtail, crabgrass, pigweed and lambsquarter, start the fight early with Bicep,* the foundation herbicide for economical control of tough weeds all season long. Applied up to 30 days prior to planting, Bicep stops tough weeds as they germinate, to keep corn yields up and weed pressure down.

We recommend Bicep because it delivers the best broad spectrum control available in a premix at a low cost. Even with the superior performance of Bicep, triazine resistant weeds can be a problem. Ask us about a program featuring Bicep to control all of your tough weeds.

This season, fight smart. Use Bicep.

Love For The Farm Brought Her Home

BY LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

EVERETT (Bedford Co.) — Lori Sollenberger Knepp grew up loving Jersey cows, cats, and everything connected with the rolling farmlands around her home.

At an early age, she began showing Jersey cows and walking away with a hefty number of prizes at county fairs. She was never outranked by her older sister, Beth, now a minister in Dayton, Ohio, nor by her brother, Leon, who has also returned to the home farm.

"I was always active in 4-H," Lori remembers. "I sewed as well as showing cows and that's something I still like to do. The problem is I don't have enough hours to spend on sewing projects."

At 5'8", she finds it difficult to find store bought clothing that fit properly. The expertise she gained as a 4-H sewer has also made her rather particular in clothing construction.

After graduating from Everett High School, Lori went on to Penn State where she received her degree in Dairy Science in 1981.

"I always thought I would like to be in dairy research," this tall, slim, brunette says now, "but after giving it a try one summer at college, I knew I wanted to return to the farm. It's the animals. I've always loved animals and I just knew farming was what I wanted to do."

Returning to Everett and the Sollenbergers' 120-acre farm, which includes another 120 rented acres, Lori still wanted to spread her wings and try a few adventures.

"I spent one winter on a farm in Iowa just getting some experience," she remembers. "And, then I spent two more winters working in a United Church of Christ missions program in Sri Lanka."

An active Brethren all of her life, Lori chose the UCC program because her own church did not have any missionary programs in the parts of the world she wanted to explore.

Then, in 1987, Lori settled in as a full-time farm hand on her father's farm. By this time, brother Leon, was also able to join dad, Ray, in the farm work.

And, Lori got married to Rex Knepp, a computer analyst for New Enterprise Stone and Lime. The couple met while co-counseling a canoe trip for the youth of the Brethren Church.

While not a farm boy, Rex had grown up in nearby Morrison's Cove and was familiar with farm life. "He seems to enjoy it," Lori smiles. "He's always willing to pitch in and help with the farm work when it's my weekend to work."

Lori's main responsibility on the farm is the milking and record keeping of the more than 75 cows.

It's always been my father's theory that one person should be primarily responsible for the milking," Lori explains.

"That way, in the summer, not everyone has to come in from the fields to do the milking."

Lori's work day begins at 4 a.m. when she dons her coveralls and boots and drives the short distance from the small farm she and Rex have bought to the Sollenberger farm.

"We've always had Jerseys," she says proudly. "A lot of prize-winning Jerseys. It's a family tradition. My grandfather had a big Jersey herd and there were four boys in the family. They have all specialized in Jerseys.

"Another reason we have specialized in Jerseys is because of their smaller size," Lori continues. "A smaller cow does not eat as much and a herd of Jersey cows do not take as much room as a herd of Holsteins."

Lori and Leon share the early morning milking. "On the mornings I don't have to milk, I feed. Then I don't have to go to work until 6 a.m.," she said with a smile.

If there is time for a few hours off, Lori takes them between the end of the morning milking around 7:30 a.m. and the beginning of the evening milking at 3 p.m. "We usually finish up around 6 or 6:30," she says.

Lori often prepares dinner before going to do the milking and husband, Rex, heats it up and has dinner on the table when she returns from the barn.

"The most challenging part of the dairy industry is the breeding," expresses Lori. "I do all of the record keeping and it's always a challenge to think that we can breed a better producer, a better cow. It's the part I enjoy the most."

Lori and Rex do find some time to get away together. "I have every other weekend off from milking," Lori says. "Every winter we try to take a long weekend. It's a lot more difficult to get away in the summer, so we usually try to work in a vacation during an off season."

Elaine Sollenberger, Lori's mother, held a high position in the Brethren Church for a number of years that caused the entire family to attend the Brethren conference last summer. Lori states. "We paid someone to do the work and we all went together."

Despite a work day which can begin at 4 a.m. and not end until late in the evening, Lori is active in her church, the Everett Church of the Brethren. She currently has a part-time position which entails about six hours a week as a director of youth ministries. With nearly 400 members, there are more duties at the Church of the Brethren than the pastor can handle alone.

The Sollenbergers attend three county fairs and participate in the Pennsylvania All American Show at Harrisburg each year.

Last year they had the grand champion Jersey and the junior and reserve champion Jerseys at the Morrison's Cove Dairy Show at Martinsburg. They took reserve and two junior champion awards at the Bedford Fair and walked away with nearly all of the Jersey titles at the Huntingdon Fair.

"We don't do as well at the All American," Lori explains. "But, it's good exposure. We usually get a lot of inquiries that continue all year. We've sold quite a few cows by attending that event. And, last year, we were proud to have the calf that brought the most in the "Pot of Gold Sale."

Helping to farm 240 acres and keeping records while milking 75 cows doesn't allow Lori a lot of free time. But, when she and Rex can find a few moments, they enjoy fixing up their old farmhouse.

"We like to look for antiques," she admits. "When we buy a piece of furniture, we always look at public sales. We've found some real treasures doing that."

One of her favorite pieces is a glass front display cabinet that an uncle was going to throw away.

"Don't do that," Lori said, filling it with collectible items, she turned it into a usable and attractive piece of furniture.

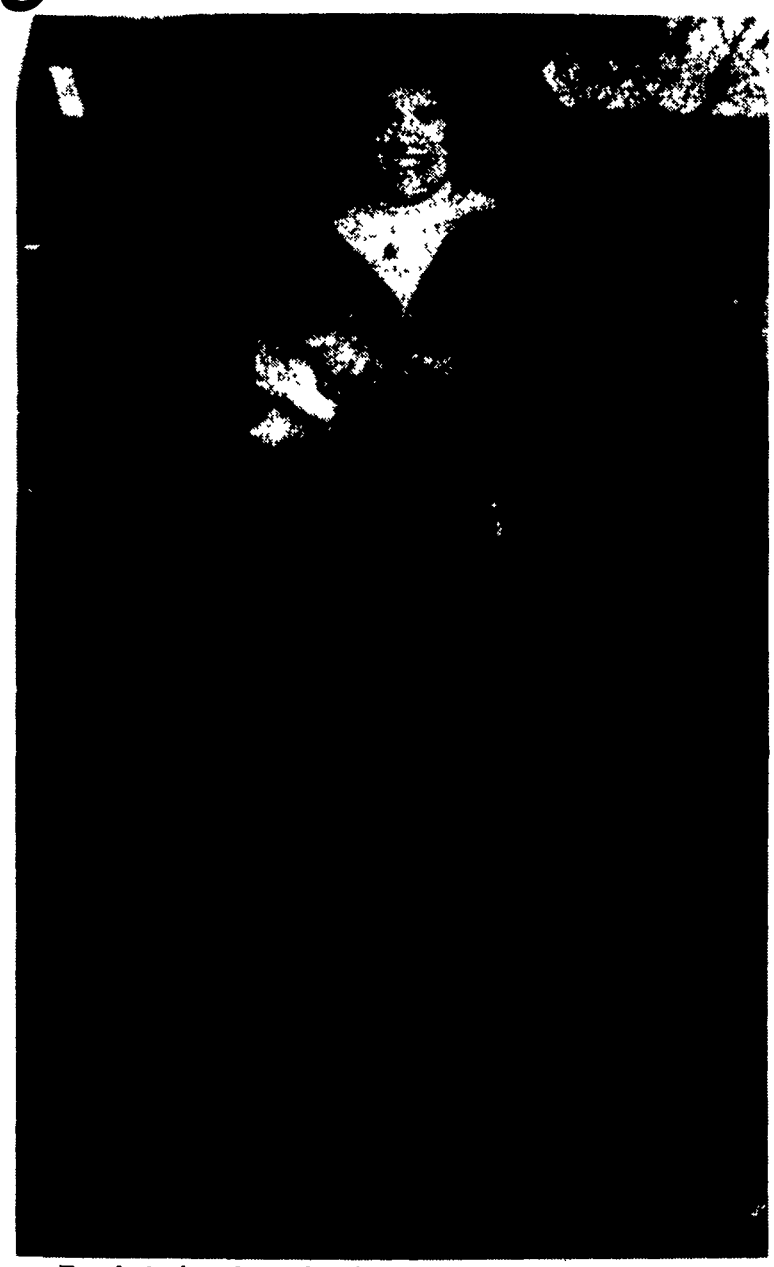
She also enjoys haunting unusual gift shops where she looks for unique collectible items or music boxes.

One of her favorite parts of farm life will always be the cats. Lori and Rex have two house cats. In addition, Lori has made more than 15 farm cats her personal pets.

"I've always loved them," she says, snuggling up to a well-fed tiger female. "They have individual personalities, they are self-sufficient, I just love them."

Ask Lori's dad if he was surprised when his pretty daughter wanted to return to work on the farm, he grins broadly.

"Not at all," he says, "I knew she could never stay away from the cats."



Ready to head out for the afternoon milking, Lori says "goodbye" to one of her two housecats.

Lori has been milking Jerseys since she was a little girl. It's one of her favorite parts of the dairying business.

Nancy Herring's Racing Pigs Hog The Attention

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

CHALK HILL (Fayette Co.) — Two years ago Nancy Herring recalls thinking, "I'm over 60 and I can't do anything."

Today the 64-year-old jumps over hay bales while cheering pigs to victory.

Pig racing is a relatively new sport that has rejuvenated Nancy and brought her some fame and a whole lot of enthusiasm.

She recalls that her debut into pig racing just sort of happen. She and her husband Rolland, president of the state fair convention, wanted to get a professional pig racing team to come to the Fayette County Fair.

But the team was booked and commanded a fee of several thousand dollars.

"I decided I'd do it myself," Nancy said. "Of course I don't have the pot belly pigs that the professionals use, but mine are just as much fun to watch."

For her first race, she purchased ordinary Duroc piglets and since then has used a variety of breeds. Some of her favorites were named Miss Piggy, Eeenie, Meanie, Minie and Mo.

"Pigs are smart and easy to train," Nancy said.

Nancy Herring

And because pigs love sweets, Nancy capitalizes on their sweet tooth by rewarding the pigs with Oreo cookies after they run around the track.

Although she leads her four piglets through the paces once a day for 15 days before racing them, she said, "It only takes one time around the track for them to figure out there is a cookie at the end. Pigs are smart."

Crowds gather to watch the oinkers compete. Each pig is introduced to the crowd. Each pig has a number on a silk and on a corresponding pendant. Nancy picks four children from the crowd and has them hold a pennant. Each child and his surrounding group cheer their pig on to victory. T-shirts commemorating the race are given as awards to the child who holds the winning pennant.

With grunts, squeels and a few shoves, the winning pig crosses the finish line to the wild cheers of the crowd. Pigs run about 200 feet in 11 or 15 seconds.

It's a real crowd pleaser." Nancy claims, "And the pigs have as much fun as everyone else."

Her shows usually last 15 to 20 minutes. She said at the Fayette County Fair, Rick Allen, a well-known Holstein breeder, acts as the announcer and encourages an enthusiastic crowd. Several children help with the races.

As a curtain call, Nancy asks the crowd if they'd like to see a pig drink a soda. With obvious piggish manners, the pig slurps a soda from a bottle.

Some secrets on the behind-the-scenes pig racing that Nancy has uncovered are that pigs have a pecking order. One pig is always the leader and the other pigs follow.

For exciting racing, pigs should be between 15 to 20 pounds and about eight weeks. She races them for about four weeks. After that, Nancy said, "The pigs retire to the pig farm and live happily ever after."

Nancy admits to growing homesick for her racing pigs that have returned to ordinary farm life. Sometimes she visits them.

"The pigs remember by voice," she said. "I can tell they remember me."

After Herring' and her pigs's first appearance at the fair, Nancy was exhausted. But fair officials wouldn't let Nancy even think about retirement. "You're coming back," they ordered.

News of her pig racing has spread and Nancy and her racing pigs are in demand at other county fairs.

Her racing pigs also entertained visitors who attended the Monday night frolic at the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Her pigs also competed in national competition at Mongomery County Fair, Maryland. Although she didn't win, she and her porkers had a great race. "I was the only amateur competing against professional pig racers," Nancy noted.

Each year Nancy works to make the show better than the one before. This year, Nancy plans to improve on the decorations, and she plans on having a platform so that children can see the pigs before starting the race.

When Nancy isn't racing pigs, she and her husband operate Herrings Garden Center in Chalk Hill.

Jeremy Ivcar urges the racing pigs on to victory. Jeremy helps Nancy Herring with the pig races that have grown in popularity.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Regardless of interest levels, idiosyncracies of the stock market, value of the dollar, or the state of your personal allowance, this week we'll all "be in the red."

If you doubt that, just flip through the colorful advertising flyers accompanying your local newspapers or take a quick turn around in just about any sort of shopping arena. It's as though Cupid shot his arrow into the air to shatter the sullen overcast of February and pour cloudbursts of cheery red hearts into this stretch of drab, often damp, mid-winter.

C'mon, you didn't forget did you? If so, it's not too late to ponder a remembrance for your sweetie.

Modern merchandising has made it incredibly easy. It's possible to say a Valentine's Day "I love you!" in an endless array of shades of bright crimson and blazing pink and with textures ranging from glittery foil to shiny ceramic to soft, stuffed, fuzzy, fake fur.

Tops on the list, of course, are long-stemmed roses, a standard symbol of affection. Costly, but definitely high-ranking for making a positive impression.

Yes, indeed, my loved ones have often gifted me with roses. In fact, we're hoping that those of recent years managed to survive their exposed location in the rose bed even through the December's bitter arctic blasts.

Candy is equally traditional, with lots of retailers already promoting sale prices for those of us to whom money is an object. Heart-shaped boxes of chocolates are perpetual winners despite awareness of their caloric content.

And who can resist the lure of the messages spelled out on the eternally popular "conversation hearts?" Well, apparently this household can. Some months ago, I pitched out the hard, stale, uneaten remains of a pack of candied "Love You," "Be Mine" and "Oh You Kid" confections left from at least two years ago. the reading of these tiny, pastel, heart-shaped messages obviously proved more appealing than did the eating.

Long gone, too, are the years when it was necessary for this Mom to track down a supply of children's Valentine Day cards for sending to school friends. But, the tradition of trading Valentines at school appears to remain alive and well, and many of these handy packs of cards still include one for the teacher. A quick glance at kids' Valentine cards offers a capsule look at today's popular entertainment trends.

Remember punching out perforated-edged Valentines from big cardboard books, then cutting out and pasting together the envelopes in which to send them? There wasn't a single Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle or Super Mario Brothers card in the whole lot.

Wish I had squirreled away some of those old Valentine cards. They're probably collector items by now.

Actually, we've never been terribly "into" Valentine's Day flowers, candy or gifts, and have never dug very deeply into pocketbooks to support the merchandising of this cheery February holiday.

Most memorable (?) was the pair of "gummy" rats presented me a few years ago by the youngest. Life-sized, one in orange, the other in bubble-gum flavor, the rats were of the same thick, chewy textured candy made popular by "gummy bears" and "gummy worms."

With such memories, I choose to cherish instead the less obvious "Valentines" periodically dropped into the day-to-day routine of our dairy-farm lifestyle.

Valentines like a bouquet of sweet-smelling lilacs brought in on a tractor from some distant field during May haymaking. Or being summoned for a quick three-sheeler ride to pasture or fencerow to share in the sighting of an unusual bird. Or having the dishwasher emptied, or the lawn mowed, or the attic cleaned, before I have the chance to get the chore done. Even just a phone call to let me know they'll be home late is a welcome thoughtfulness.

So if you almost forgot Valentine's Day again, just clip this column and present it to your loved one. Just make sure you wrap it first around a bouquet of roses or heart-shaped box of candy

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

EDITOR'S NOTE: Joyce Battcher is on vacation. This is a repeat from past readers' favorites.

You may be surprised that your microwave can cook Chinese style. Whether you celebrate Chinese New Year or not, you'll like the speed and convenience of stir-frying and steaming in your microwave oven.

Microwave stir-frying is neater and easier than using a wok on the range-top. There's no spattering oil, no standing over the hot flame, and less stirring. Cooking time is about the same.

For micro-stir-frying, use a microwave-safe two- to three-quart casserole. Marinate meat or poultry; then cover with waxed paper and microwave. Stir in and microwave long-cooking vegetables; add quicker-cooking vegetables toward end of cooking. No cooking oil is needed.

Cook firm vegetables first — such as broccoli stems, cauliflower flowerettes, carrot rounds, onion slices and celery. More tender vegetables are added next — like shredded cabbage, snow peas (edible pea pods), broccoli flowerettes and zucchini slices. Fresh vegetables that are cut into shreds (thin matchsticks or paper-thin) and canned or frozen vegetables need only brief cooking — usually only 30 to 90 seconds of heating — so should be added toward end of cooking.

Do not overcook. Stop microwaving before vegetables are the doneness you prefer. In micro-stir-frying, vegetables are usually cooked loosely covered with waxed paper to give a tender-crisp texture, rather than covered with plastic wrap or a tight-fitting casserole lid as in steaming.

Micro-steaming of vegetables, poultry or fish can be done on a rack over hot water, with a tight cover. The water slows cooking. In some special microwave steamers, a metal cover protects food from fast-cooking microwaves and boils the water to create steam.

When microwaving vegetables in a tightly covered container with liquid — as in Sweet-Sour Carrots (below) — vegetables are actually steaming without the bother of a rack and longer cooking time. For Steamed Pork Buns, simply microwaving buns on a flat tray works well. Microwaving, like steaming, is moist heat, so the buns are cooked but not browned, like the traditional Chinese-style delicacies.

For a Chinese meal, prepare Steamed Pork Buns, but cook them right before serving for an appetizer. Cook rice conventionally. Microwave the carrots and let them stand, covered, while preparing the beef dish.

Chinese Beef With Oyster Sauce

1 pound boneless beef sirloin or top round steak, cut in 2x½ x¼ -inch strips
1 medmium onion, thinly sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ -inch slice fresh ginger, minced, or ¼ teaspoon ground ginger
3 tablespoons oyster sauce*
½ pound broccoli: stems, thinly sliced, and flowerettes, cut into 1-inch pieces
Hot cooked rice

In microwave-safe 2-quart casserole, stir together beef strips, onion, garlic, ginger and oyster sauce. Let stand about 10 minutes at room temperature. Refrigerate if necessary to marinate longer.

Cover casserole with waxed paper. Microwave (High) 2½ to 3½ minutes or until beef is rare to medium-rare, stirring after each 1½ minutes. Stir in broccoli stems. Re-cover and microwave (High) 1 to 1½ minutes, stirring after each 30 seconds. When done, beef is the doneness you prefer and broccoli flowerettes are bright green. (Beef is most tender when cooked to medium-rare or medium.) Serve on rice. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Each serving — ¼ of recipe, without rice: 278 calories, 26g protein, 15g fat, 7g carbohydrate, 793mg sodium, 77mg cholesterol.

* Oyster sauce is found by Oriental foods in large supermarkets. If you can't find oyster sauce, you may substitute 2 tablespoons dark soy sauce, 1 teaspoon instant beef bouillon granules, 1 teaspoon cornstarch, and 1 teaspoon sugar. Taste will not be exactly the same as when using oyster sauce.

Sweet-Sour Carrots

4 carrots, slant-cut into thin rounds
2 tablespoons chicken broth or water
2 tablespoons vinegar
3-4 teaspoons sugar
¾ teaspoon cornstarch
Dash garlic powder

Stir together all ingredients in microwave-safe 1-quart casserole. Cover tightly with plastic wrap. Microwave (High) 3 to 4 minutes, stirring after each minute, until carrots are just about done and sauce is thick. Let stand, covered, about 5 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Each serving: 40 calories, 1g protein, 0 fat, 10g carbohydrate, 53mg sodium, 0 cholesterol.

Steamed Pork Buns

¼ pound unseasoned ground lean pork
½ cup finely chopped onion
½ cup drained and finely chopped canned water chestnuts
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 cans (8 ounces each) refrigerated biscuits

Place ground pork and onion in microwave-safe 1-quart measure or casserole. Microwave (High) 2½ to 3½ minutes, stirring once, or until pork is no longer pink. Drain if a large amount of fat is present. Stir in water chestnuts; set aside. In small dish stir together soy sauce, brown sugar and cornstarch until smooth; stir into pork mixture. Microwave (High) 45 to 60 seconds or until thick. Chill well.

With lightly oiled fingers, flatten each biscuit into a 3- to 4-inch diameter round. Place a scant tablespoon of pork mixture in center; gather edges together and pinch to seal dough. Place filled-side down on microwave-safe tray, arranging 10 buns in a circle with the center open. Microwave on Medium (50 percent power, 325-350 watts) 2½ to 3½ minutes, rotating dish once, until buns no longer look and feel doughy. Remove to a wire rack. Repeat with remaining pork filling and biscuits. Serve warm. Makes 20 buns (20 appetizer or snack servings or about 5 main-dish servings).

Each bun: 88 calories, 3g protein, 4g fat, 11g carbohydrate, 210mg sodium, 5mg cholesterol.

BEEF STIR-FRY

1 pound top round, sliced thin
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 to 2 tablespoons fresh grated ginger, optional
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 tablespoon olive or vegetable oil
1 large onion, chopped
6 scallions, sliced lengthwise into 4-inch pieces
2 carrots, sliced thin
1 cup celery, sliced
2 cups snow peas
1 sweet red pepper, sliced
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¼ cup cold water
Pepper to taste

Marinade: Combine meat with soy sauce, ginger, and garlic in a bowl. Cover with plastic wrap and marinate in the refrigerator for one hour.

In a wok of heavy, nonstick skillet, heat oil over medium heat. Add onion and scallions, saute until onion is translucent. While onion is sauteing, remove meat from marinade and set aside. Add marinade, carrots, celery, snow peas, and red pepper to wok.

Stir approximately 4 minutes until vegetables begin to soften. Add mushrooms; stir. Push vegetables up the sides of the wok. Increase heat to medium-high. Cook's Question QUESTION — Geneva Huston of Westmoreland County sent a nut cake recipe that Dorothy McQuade, McConnellsburg had requested.

Nut Loaf

1½ cup sifted flour
1½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 pounds pitted dates
1 8-ounce bottle of maraschino cherries, drained
2 pounds shelled walnuts
1 pound shelled Brazil nuts
5 large eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Add dates, cherries, and nuts. Stir well to coat nuts and fruit with flour. Beat eggs well. Stir in vanilla, then mix into flour nut mixture. Spoon into 3 greased loaf pans. Bake in slow oven at 325 degrees for 1 hour or until browned. Cool before slicing. Yields 3 loaves.

ANSWER — Donald Love, a faithful reader, requested recipes for making cottage cheese and cream cheese. Thanks to Shirley Schwoerer of Wysox for sending recipes for each request.

Cottage Cheese

½ gallon skim milk
½ gallon whole milk
¼ rennet tablet
¼ cup water
¼ cup buttermilk
½ cup light cream or half and half
½ teaspoon salt

Combine skim and whole milk in a Dutch oven. Use only stainless steel or enamel as aluminum will react with the lactic acid in milk. Heat to 70 degrees. Meanwhile dissolve rennet in water. Stir rennet mixture and buttermilk into warm milk. Cover and let stand undisturbed in a warm place for 12 to 18 hours or until firm curd forms. Cut into ½ -inch pieces. Slowly heat curd over low heat to 120 to 130 degrees. Hold curd in this temperature range for 30 minutes. Stir gently every 5 minutes to heat curd uniformly. Pour mixture into a large clolander lined with a double layer of cheesecloth. Let whey drain off. Shift curd occasionally by lifting corners of cloth. After whey has drained about 10 minutes, lift curd in cheesecloth and immerse in pan of warm water for 1 to 2 minutes, working with a spoon; repeat procedure. Then immerse in ice water for 1 to 2 minutes. Allow curd to drain until it is moisture free — usually several hours or overnight. Place in bowl. Stir in cream and salt. Chill before serving.

Homemade Cream Cheese And Sour Cream

Buy a large container of nonfat yogurt that is not made with gelatin. Empty the container into a strainer lined with cheesecloth. Place the strainer over a bowl and allow the liquid to drain. After 3 to 4 hours, you will have a low-calorie substitute for sour cream. After 12 to 14 hours, you will have diet cream cheese.

3 (6-ounce) packages semi-sweet chocolate chips
1 (14-ounce) can sweetned condensed milk
Dash salt
½ to 1 cup chopped nuts
1½ teaspoons vanilla extract

In heavy saucepan, over low heat, melt chocolate chips with sweetened condensed milk and salt. Remove from heat; stir in nuts and vanilla. Spread evenly into wax paper-lined 8-or 9-inch square pan. Chill 2 hours or until firm. Turn fudge onto cutting board; peel off paper and cut into squares. Store loosely covered at room temperature.

Borden Kitchens

CHOCOLATE BREAD PUDDING

4 cups one-inch French bread cubes, crusts removed (6 to 7 slices)
½ cup coarsely chopped pecans
1½ cups milk
2 ounces unsweetened chocolate
3 eggs
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Whipped cream

Place bread cubes and nuts in buttered 1½ -quart casserole. Heat milk and chocolate in small saucepan until chocolate is melted. Beat with hand mixer until chocolate is completely dissolved. Meanwhile, beat eggs and sugar until well blended. Stir in chocolate mixture and vanilla. Pour over bread and nuts. Let stand, covered, at room temperature 30 minutes. Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Bake, uncovered, 30 to 35 minutes. Cool at least one hour on wire rack. Serve topped with whipped cream.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

My husband has decided to retire after milking cows morning and evening for more than forty years on our farm. Of course, he did milking on his father's farm for many years before that.

Our son, Philip, and his wife, Lisa, will take over the daily chore of keeping some 100 animals happy and raising corn and alfalfa to feed them. They arrive at the farm at 4 a.m. to start their chores. It is a schedule that I would not want to follow. But, they are young.

Allen has many jobs that he can do if he wants to. So far this year, he replaced many rails in the fence around our yard and garden and even had to dig holes for new posts. He is building a shelter out of new lumber for the big logs that we burn in our new furnace. And, when the weather is favorable, he crawls up on the barn roof and helps to replace some sheets of roofing. If the weather is not nice, I have small repairs in the house that have been put off for years and years. I even got new handles on some heavy kettles for which I'd been asking for decades.

Now that I've embroidered a bureau scarf and repaired a moth-eaten rug, I shall start a new braided rug. It seems that I do not have enough wool material, of the colors that I need so I'll have to visit a Goodwill store. this will be my tenth small rug.

In the summer my black kittens broke a large kalanchoe plant into small pieces. For a few days I simply looked at the chewed up plant laying in the garden and felt badly. Then as the small pieces did not seem to die, I finally got four pots and stuck in the twenty pieces. Today all of these plants with their waxy leaves are blooming and I'm enjoying their bright orange four-petaled flowers. The plant was originally given to me as a table prize at a farm banquet.

One never knows how things will turn out — be they plants or retirement.

Consider Cost, Time and Nutrition When Buying Frozen Meals

American consumers spend about one-fifth of their home food dollars on multi-ingredient prepared mixtures such as frozen dinners and entrees, accounting for over $3.3 billion.

Frozen dinners and entrees are quick and easy to prepare, and some reflect a high degree of culinary skill.

But how much time do they actually save? And are they worth the price? What about their nutritional quality?

In a study of eight frozen food dinners and entrees and their homemade counterparts, USDA's Consumer Use of Foods Laboratory found that the frozen products cost about three to four times more than the same quantity of food prepared from scratch.

The cost per serving of frozen dinners and entrees ranged from $1.99 to $3.00, whereas the basic ingredients for a serving of their home-prepared counterparts ranged from $0.62 to $1.29.

Preparation time for the frozen dinners was considerably lower. Active preparation time — which includes all steps that require the full or partial attention of the preparer — ranged from one to three minutes.

To prepare the meals from scratch, however, took from 23 minutes to one hour and nine minutes.

Most frozen dinners and entrees list nutrition information, including calories, carbohydrates, protein, fat, cholesterol, some vitamins and sodium content. Some are labeled "light."

The fat, cholesterol and sodium content of recipes for home-prepared foods can be modified to some extent by reducing amount of added fat, cholesterol and salt by wise selection of ingredients and preparation methods.

When assessing the nutritional adequacy of frozen dinners and entrees, you may consider the following guidelines:

• Consider the nutrient content of the convenience meal compared to the foods you might typically eat. If the convenience product contains a similar amount of meat, vegetable or fruit, and rice or pasta, it probably will make a similar nutritional contribution to your day's intake.

Use the nutritional labels to compare the dinners available. Look for products that contain higher percentages of the Recommended Daily Allowance for the most nutrients. Look for products that contain the least amount of cholesterol (it is recommended that we limit our daily cholesterol consumption to 300 milligrams). Choose products that contain fewer grams of fat (or that have no more than 30% of calories from fat) and fewer milligrams of sodium. We need between 2200 and 3000 milligrams of sodium daily.

To figure the percentage of calories that come from fat — multiply the grams of fat by nine (each gram of fat contains nine calories). Next divide that number by the total number of calories given per serving and multiply by 100 to get the percentage. Example: If the label states that one serving contains 10 grams of fat and 275 calories, multiply 10 x 9 = 90; divide 90 by 274 = .32; multiply .32 x 100 = 32%.

If a convenience product that is low in certain nutrients or higher in fat, cholesterol or sodium is used at one meal, compensate by the types of food selection you make during the rest of the day. It is the total daily diet that counts — not one food or meal.

• When deciding whether to use frozen meals or prepare your own, you must consider time available for food preparation, money available for food, nutrition and eating quality. You have to decide for yourself which is the most important.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 14

Lancaster Farm Women Society 14 met on Jan. 17, at the home of Arlene Eshbenshade. The project of the morning was to sew cancer pads.

New officers gave reports: Jean Rowe, secretary; and Mary Louise Landis, treasurer. The sewing committee reported that members prepared 57 pads. We also got a glimpse of the quilt that will be going into the frame at the home of Elma Barge.

Janet Leaman gave some information apout the day bus trip in April. She started a signup sheet. Destination: Maple Festival, Myerstown.

The ladies who attended the state farm women's convention in Harrisburg reported on the event. Delegates were president Gladys Eshbenshade; Viola Hostetter, Dorothy Musser, Rhoda Landis, and Mildred Herr, Esther Landis, and Mary Louise Landis.

Guests were Alma Wenger and a seeing eye puppy who is living with them. They are foster parents who are helping the dog adjust socially and teaching her basic skills — Soon she will be under trainers who will get her ready to be someone's "Eyes". — We all hope she "makes it"!

Members adjourned to meet again on Valentine's Day at the home of Marian Rowe at the Brethren Village.

Berks Society 11

A wet and rainy evening greeted Berks County Farm Women Group #11, for their first meeting of the year at the home of Fran Dubble. By-laws were read and a multiple choice quiz was then taken. A home video was shown to us by Shirley Lentz, our anchor women who taped a prior meeting.

County Board minutes were read and reviewed. Dates for Berksheim Bingo are April 5, and November 1. Plans for the 15th anniversary were discussed. Dates for meetings this year were reviewed and approved.

Lebanon Society 14

Lebanon County Farm Women Group #14 met recently at the home of Darlene Habecker. Thirteen members and two guests were present. Reports were given by several members who attended the state convention. It was decided to send a contribution to the Four Diamonds Fund. After the business meeting, Alletta Schadler, extension home economist, presented a program on nutrition and proper reading of food labels. Refreshments were served following the meeting.

TAKING TIME

Questioning the Fast-Buck Promises

One of the things that I find cluttering my life is the bundles of junk mail I receive each week. Many of these are pleas for money to support an array of causes, but the ones that anger me most are people's attempts to make a fast buck at my expense. These fast money gimmicks seem to be a bargain on the surface, but I find myself asking "What's the Catch?"

One letter promised, "You can save as much as $70,000 on your home mortgage and pay off your loan in two-thirds of the time!" Along with this enticing promise came an invitation to sell this program to others and make even more money. Others promise a product that looks wonderful in the photograph, but in reality is much less exciting.

These days people are out to make money, and I encourage you, for the sake of your family's budget, to move cautiously and ask questions. "How can that company provide its product at that price and still make money?" Am I really going to get the deal they promise?"

Some companies make their money through a pyramid scheme where a customer sells the products to friends; those friends sell to others. By offering commissions for the sales that they generate through these others, businesses predict great earnings for little time and effort. Unfortunately, this system only works for a limited time because soon the market in an area is saturated. People can only make money if they can continue to find new buyers and sellers.

Others make money by manipulating figures — juggling interest rates. Still others profit when the product is produced with less than standard quality materials. Some companies really do make the "fast buck." They get people to pay for a product and then go out of business or simply disappear without delivering the item.

On the other hand, legitimate businesses exist that can offer you a good product or service for the money paid. In order to differentiate the bargain from the bomb, look for these features:

- The company is well-established and has a reputation for providing a quality product.
- The company provides a written guarantee or method of returning the product if you are not satisfied.
- The fine print in the advertisement or contract does not contradict the bold headline "bargain."
- You know the exact product/service you will receive, the price you will pay, and the date of delivery. With the money-saving mortgage deal, I didn't know if I would receive a computer printout, a book, a new mortgage offer, or a sheet of paper to carry when I negotiated with my own banker.

If you can examine the item, do so carefully. Look for interior flaws. Be inquisitive. Ask questions of the salesclerk or dealer. Also ask your friends about their experiences with similar companies or items.

To eliminate bothersome junk mail and telephone sales offers, request that your name be removed from calling and mailing lists. Two major listing companies are: Telephone Preference Service Marketing Association, 6 East 43rd Street, New York, NY 10017 and Direct Marketing Association, 6 East 43rd Street, New York, NY 10017.

These careful shopping suggestions will help you to avoid buying a get-rich-quick promise over the phone. They will also help you to avoid paying too much to a fitness club or furniture manufacturer. Taking the time to ask questions may mean saving your family hundreds of hard-earned dollars. You may also avoid unhealthy stress. When you hear about an unbelievably great way to save money, remember to ask "What's the catch?"

Henry and Irene Shenk of Manheim welcome visitors to Stone Haus Farm.

Stone Haus Farm: A Home Away From Home

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Those who drive past Henry and Irene Shenk's farm in Manheim may be surprised by inordinary sights. One evening 10 Karate instructors dressed in red suits exercised in their farm lane.

Another time, visitors from China, Japan, Netherlands, Poland and India sat in the Shenk's yard discussing politics.

Sometimes guests are playing musical instruments and singing.

These activities aren't planned. They just happen when tourists visit the Shenks' Stone Haus Farm through the farm vacation program.

The Shenks began their Bed and Breakfast operation in 1986, and advertise, "Our home is not a showcase. It is a home away from home for our guests."

Stone Haus Farm vacations are advertised through the Lancaster County tourist bureau and the Mennonite Information Center. Because the Shenks especially enjoy international visitors and have room to sleep 20 guests, the Shenks often have an unusual mixture of nationalities and political beliefs among their guests.

The Shenks love it. Especially when their guests include a few Washington politicians. They enjoy telling of the time when a member from the influencial ecology Green Party in West Germany visited nearby nuclear Three-Mile Island and generated interesting discussions on enviromental issues with guests.

"It's fascinating to hear viewpoints from many different people," Henry said.

Another reason the Shenks enjoy having visitors is "to share our faith and our way of life."

They are of the Mennonite faith and the 103-acre farm is a working farm where 100 veal calves are raised and corn, soybeans, and wheat are grown.

For 25 years, it had been known as a potato farm, but when the Shenks five children grew up, the Shenks stopped raising potatoes because, "The children got better jobs."

The tourist business has brought some changes to the farm. The Shenks previously had raised beef cattle, but they found the smell and the flies is a detriment to the tourist business and they stopped raising cattle. They continue their veal operation and find the demand for veal is increasing. Visitors often enjoy watching Henry feed the calves.

Another change is schedules. "Sometimes it seems like I wash and wash and wash," Irene said, "but I find it's easy washing compared with farm dirt laundry." She irons the pillow cases but not the sheets.

Each bed has one of Irene's quilts on it. Every room has at least one quilted wall hanging. In addition to making them for her own use, Irene stitches many quilts and wallhangings to sell."

Irene began quilting because she didn't want to go away to work. Through the years, she found having visitors and quilting a good combination, but recently has decided to give up quilting to give more time to the bed and breakfast operation and to have some time to pursue her artistic talents in oil and water colors.

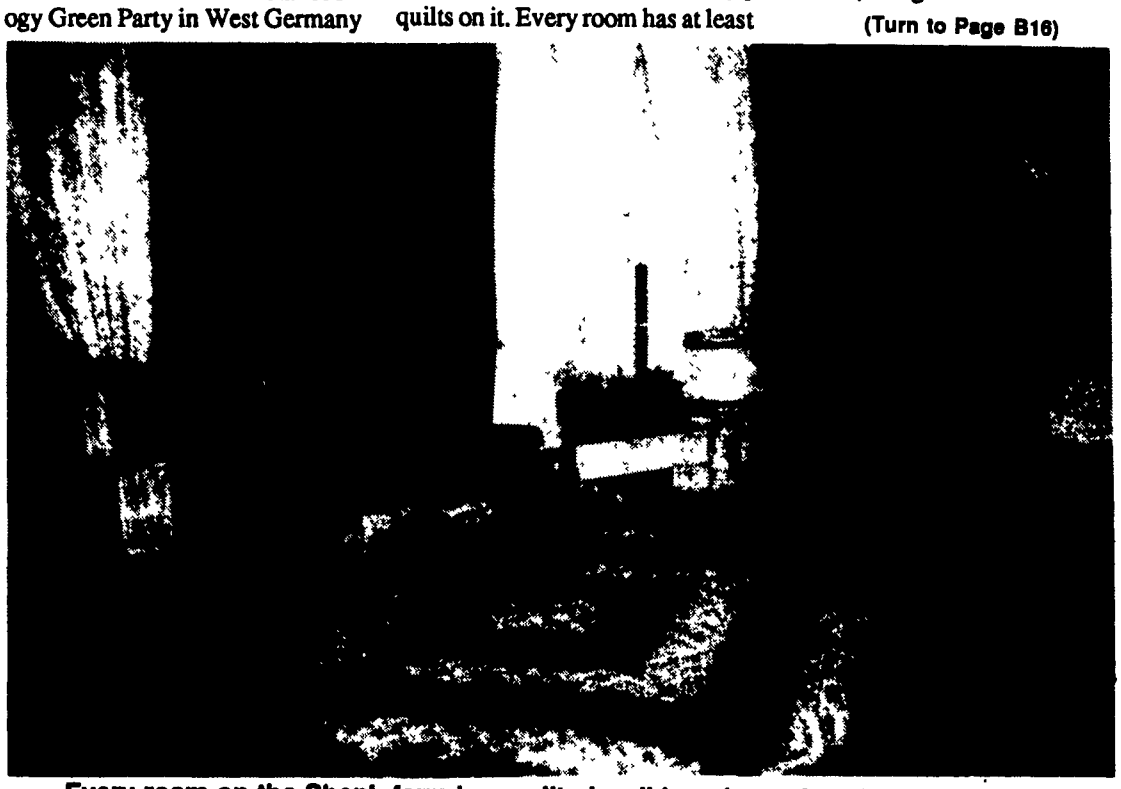
The Shenks also changed their sleeping schedule after they began hosting visitors. Irene said, "We used to go to bed early, but not anymore. Now it is generally 11 p.m. because guests like to talk with us."

Henry still needs to get up at 5 a.m. to feed the calves. For the past 22 years, Henry drives school bus morning and afternoon. He enjoys children and to make each one feel special, he photographs each one and hangs the photos in the front of the bus.

Three months after the Shenks opened their home to guests, lightning struck their attic. "We had guests at the time, and fortunately were able to rescue all their belongings before the fire trucks arrived," Irene recalled.

Water damage forced them to repaper all the rooms but the kitchen. The day after the fire, 40 friends, neighbors and relatives

(Turn to Page B16)



Every room on the Shenk farm has quilted wall hangings pieced and stitched by Irene. Beds are covered with her quilts. Irene prefers log cabin designs, which can be arranged in many different ways to give an entirely different effect.

Henry and Irene Shenk take time for a coffee break while they reflect on visitors who enjoy farm vacations on their veal farm.

For 22 years Henry Shenk has combined farming and school bus driving. He makes the children feel special by photographing each child. The pictures are mounted on a plywood bus form and hung at the front of the bus.

Stone Haus Farm

showed up to help them put a new roof on their home. The stone farmhouse was formerly covered with white stucco. During the fire, soot ruined the outside walls so the Shenks sandblasted the house both outside and the inside attic walls to show off the lovely stone.

The Shenks enjoy traveling, and, according to Irene, "Having guests from other parts of the world is like traveling."

The Shenk's children carry on the family's interest in international friendships. Dave and his wife Melody have lived in Costa Rica; Carol taught English in China for four months as part of her college training, and Elaine is currently living in Hondurus as a combination college and mission program.

Protect Your Assets With Insurance

BY KAREN THOMAS
Extension Home Economist
Lackawanna County

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — Many people avoid thinking about insurance hoping there will not be a need for it. They try to do the impossible — avoid risk. But as we all know; a chance of loss is always present.

No one knows what risks a family or individual faces in any one year — loss of health, home or personal belongings. Insurance provides a means of spreading and sharing risk. It will not bring back good health, a house or a precious heirloom, but it will shield against financial loss resulting from life's catastrophic events.

When considering insurance, follow some basic rules that can save money and provide better protection.

1. Consider insurance as part of your family's total financial plan. Know your family's income and outgo. An emergency fund equal to two to three times the family's take-home income should be a high priority savings goal. Remember the primary function of insurance is financial protection for the various assets a family owns. This includes the income-earning potential of the family members.

2. Before purchasing insurance, estimate your family's financial need should a wage earner die or become disabled. Prepare an inventory of household and personal goods.

3. Shop wisely for insurance. There are variations on premiums paid for policies of about 60 percent to 324 percent on policies — life, health, automobile and homeowner's. Try to get the same information to compare advantages, disadvantages and costs.

4. Look for group coverage. You can usually save money; however, don't assume group coverage is a better deal. Many employers are offering group automobile and homeowner's coverage on a payroll deduction basis. This can save 10 percent to 25 percent on automobile and homeowner's coverages.

5. Choose the highest deductible you can afford. The higher your emergency fund and other liquid savings, the higher the deductibles you can have for automobile, health and homeowner's coverages. Use a longer waiting period before benefits begin for disability insurance.

6. Consolidate insurances. Buy one large life insurance policy rather than several small ones. Add endorsements to a homeowner's policy to cover valuables rather than buy separate policies.

7. Check exclusions and limitations. Life policies generally exclude suicide for the first two years. Many homeowner's policies don't cover earthquake, flood and mudslide damage and may exclude artwork and jewelry. Health policies may exclude pre-existing conditions and may only pay limited benefits based on a schedule of what are "reasonable and necessary" expenses in your area.

8. Check the reliability of the insurance company. Find out if the insurance company is licensed to do business in your state by calling the State Department of Insurance. Look up the company's financial rating in Best's Insurance Reports at the local library. Look for companies that return a high portion of the monies paid in premiums in the form of benefits. Check consumer protection agencies for information such as The National Insurance Consumer Organization, Alexandria, Virginia.

9. Don't insure against routine or predictable risks. It is generally best to pay for those risks that involve small financial losses and have probability of occurrence, such as physical examinations, inoculations and eyeglasses. The risks that are best transferred involve relatively large financial loss and low probability of happening. Don't try to insure your family against every possible risk.

10. Select an insurance agent with care. Use the same care you would select a doctor or lawyer. Look for agents with special education and professional qualifications in the insurance business, as Chartered Life Underwriter (C.L.U.) and Chartered Property and Casualty Underwriter (C.P.C.U.).

11. Insurance is a way of restoring value, not enhancing value. Insurance risks are concerned with financial loss only and is personal in origin. Wagers, bets and investment risks are not insurable since they carry with them a chance for profit. You cannot profit from insurance. Determine carefully what are your insurance needs, what risks your family will retain and what risks your family will transfer.

12. Update your insurance program every year. The risks you and your family are exposed to change so does the insurance market. Get an annual insurance checkup.

When You Look Good, You Feel Good

Image Consultant Tells Women Attending Pennylvania Young Farmers Convention

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "When you look good, you feel good," Lydia Potts, a certified image and color consultant, told the audience at the Pennsylvania Young Farmers of America convention.

With humor and expression she demonstrated how 60 to 80 percent of communication depends on non verbal communication.

"The most important thing you can wear is a smile," she said. "Your innermost qualities such as humility or arrogance, gentleness or impatience, show on your face."

Through image improvement classes, Lydia teaches women to improve their presence to become all that God created them to become.

She teaches women to develop a positive presence that radiates an appearance grounded on confidence and poise. By selecting the colors that enhance a woman's natural coloring and by emphasizing good points through line and illusion dressing, women learn to communicate confidence.

"People have a physical and psycological reaction to color," she said. High contrast colors reflect authority and power; pink makes others feel unthreatened; blue is calming.

Lydia showed women that an outfit can take on an entirely new look when accessorized differently. She used scarf tying techniques and handcrafted jewelry to demonstrate the different looks.

Shoes, she said, should be the same color or darker or brighter than the hem of the garment.

Nylons should blend with the shoes. Neutral colors and taupe are safe colors.

The eyes, she said, stop at the lightest color. "Put color in three places with the lightest color near the face to create a vertical line," she said.

"All people can wear scarfs," she said, "but we need to wear them in different ways to draw away from figure problems."

She said, "If you're short, belts should be the same color as the blouse. Long waisted women should tone the belt to the skirt."

To learn how to emphasize your good points and reflect your own personality through dressing, contact Lydia at 216 A, Letort Road, Millersville, PA 17551 or call (717) 393-8864.

Lydia Potts (left), a certified image and color consultant, used a woman from the audience to demonstrate accessory accents that can give the same outfit an entirely different look.

Members of the association examined the handcrafted jewelry that Lydia Potts uses during her demonstrations. The limited edition jewelry is made from wood, shell, bone, precious metals and semi-precious stones.

Mary Ellen Gelb of Manheim said, "Some husbands are addicted to watching football or baseball and their wives complain that they can't get them away from the T.V. set. I never had that problem, but my husband sure is addicted to reading Lancaster Farming.

Snacking For Good Health

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Contrary to popular belief, snacks can be part of a healthy lifestyle. They can be low in calories and low in fat, yet still be delicious, while contributing needed nutrients to your daily food intake.

People snack for different reasons. Sometimes they crave sweet or salty foods; other times they want a particular feel to the food, like crunchy or creamy. And sometimes they snack just becuase they're bored.

Some people need to snack to get the nutrients that they need. Preschool children have small stomachs, and they may not be able to eat enough in three meals to meet their needs. It's good for them to learn that nutritious snacks can taste good, especially since they often choose their own snacks once they start school. Teenagers may sometimes prefer to eat snacks instead of meals due to busy schedules and social activities. Adults frequently snack in addition to three meals a day.

Here are some suggestions to help you keep snacking healthy and nutritious without overeating:

* If you eat three meals a day and you want to snack, make your meals smaller than you need and select snacks with high nutritive value.

* If you prefer snacks to meals, eat the same amount of food as you would if you had three meals per day, but spread it out over the whole day.

* Plan your daily snacks. Take a muffin, low salt pretzels or graham crackers with you when you go out to avoid an afternoon trip to the vending machine.

* If you're away from home and want a snack, but don't have one with you, buy orange juice, plain popcorn, low fat yogurt or fresh fruit.

* Keep low fat, low calorie snacks around the house, instead of the high fat, high calorie kinds. Look for "Lowfat" on the labels when you shop.

* If you do want a high fat, high calorie snack, serve yourself a very small portion and put the rest out of your reach and sight.

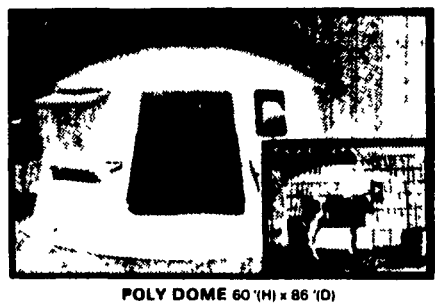
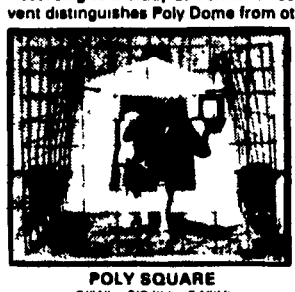
Poly Dome Means Healthier Calves.
All-Season



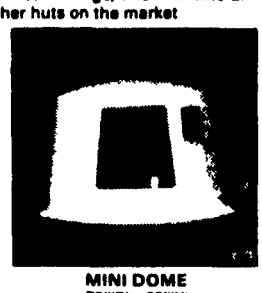
POLY DOME 60"(H) x 86"(D)

Raising calves is no easy chore! But dairymen everywhere have discovered the benefits of raising their calves in Poly Dome Calf Nurseries. In fact, Poly Dome is the first choice of dairy farmers throughout the United States and Canada. After comparing Poly Dome Calf Nurseries with modified wooden hutches, the University of Minnesota-Morris found that Poly Dome calves were healthier and grew faster than calves kept in wooden huts. And Poly Dome is now being tested at several universities across the country with similar results.

According to a study at Vermont Technical College, this rotatable air vent distinguishes Poly Dome from other huts on the market.



POLY SQUARE
5'(W) x 6'6"(L) x 54"(H)



MINI DOME
72"(D) x 68"(H)

DON'T ELIMINATE PROFITS!
Poly Dome will help put money back into your pocket faster. Why risk burnt lungs, frozen ears and tails? Poly Dome will help eliminate ammonia build-up. Your calves will be healthier and they'll grow faster. Your heifers will be part of your money making milking herd sooner. And with three different dome styles to choose from, you can select the one that works best for you-- Poly Dome, Poly Square or Mini Dome.

Blue Ball Bank Holds Ag Seminar

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

BLUE BALL (Lancaster Co.) — To many, Lancaster County has been blest with good farming conditions and enjoys a favorable crop-growing climate. What are some of the ways farmers can continue to make Lancaster County strong in agricultural production?

The topics, "Being Good Stewards of Land and Water," "Fertilizer and Manure Mangement," and "Soil and Water Stewardship" were discussed at the 7th Annual Farm Seminar on Wednesday at the Blue Ball Fire Hall. Sponsored by the Blue Ball National Bank, the seminar brought together about 150 dairy, livestock, and cash crop farmers from around the region.

Speakers at the seminar and luncheon included Leon Ressler and Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomists. Ressler presented information about the Penn State Nutrient Management Program and Anderson spoke about Lancaster County's rich heritage of farming and stewardship.

"Lancaster County farmers produce more on their land than farmers in any other place in the country," said Anderson. However, while Lancaster County farmers should understand the importance of farming and making a profit, Anderson said, there are "other things" to be concerned about.

'Master of land'

"The Bible says mankind should be the 'master of the land,'" he said. "But not a lot of us have sat down and thought about what being a master is."

Anderson said farmers should recognize and implement the concept of best management procedures. In addition, farmers should analyze the use of their land and consider all the technologies and methods of farming to ensure the land is used properly and soil is conserved.

"A great deal of soil is lost through erosion," Anderson said. In a study conducted recently, researchers found that Lancaster County lost about 20 inches of soil over a 25-year period. Much is lost through small drainways, gulleys, and ditches, where soil is either eroded by water droplets and splashed away or forced downstream by moving water.

Farmers should take steps to analyze their fields and see if the soil is being lost. Topsoil is replaced on the land only 1 inch every 1,000 years. Gulleys on farms can dislodge more than 50 tons of soil from an average farm per year. To stop erosion, farmers should consider planting a cover crop on their exposed soil to stop soil erosion. Either terracing or using contour strips can help.

Excessive levels

"Over time, nitrogen levels in fields build up higher and higher and reach excessive levels," said Ressler, who spoke about the problems of obtaining good land fertility.

"The rule of thumb is 1 pound of nitrogen for every bushel of corn harvested," said Ressler.

Children Can Be Taught To Behave In Public

Parents who are embarrassed by their young child's behavior in public have not done their homework. Probably most parents have been embarrassed at one time or another by their child's action.

Children are not born to mind in public. They have to be taught social rules at home. Threats to go to the car or go home, punching or kicking a child under the table, or to ignore a disruptive, attention-seeking child can reflect thte parents' inability to take charge of the situation.

A. Joan Lamberson, extension home economist, has these suggestions to minimize embarrassing behavior in public.

*Plan public times or expeditions to take advantage of "up time" for the child. Don't take a hungry, sleepy or tired child anywhere but home and bed.

*In a restaurant, make sure a young child has something to eat immediately, such as crackers.

*Practice good table manners daily at home. Before going to a restaurant, tell the child what to expect and exactly what you expect of him.

*Make common sense rules, such as young children should sit in shopping carts or in strollers, children should walk with the parent and never run, everybody should hold hands when in traffic area, children practice keeping their feet on the floor and hands to themselves especially in stores with breakable items.

*Accentuate the positive. Tell children you know they will try to be good. Let them know you'll remind them gently if they forget. A quiet whisper then will do more good than all the threats in the world.

*Promise the child a reward for helping you and everyone else have a pleasant time.

*When a child needs correcting, take him aside then leave. Removing him from his audience removes his support or power, and parents can take charge again.

Parents are responsible for their young child's behavior. Some children make parents' jobs easier than others. Taking children anywhere involves constant thought and attention. It's true, everybody loves a good child, but everybody notices a bad one's parents.

Oat Bran May Not Help, Doesn't Hurt

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — You've read it in magazine articles, seen it in TV ads and commercials, and heard it on the news: Oat bran helps reduce the level of cholesterol in your blood. But does it really?

A new study by researchers at Harvard Medical School suggests that oat bran may not be the cholesterol reducer it's been cracked up to be.

"This new study definitely raises a question about oat bran's effect on cholesterol," says Dr. Mark A. Kantor, food and nutrition specialist with the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. "Its results suggest that oat bran may not reduce serum cholesterol because of its soluble fiber, but because increased consumption of oat bran products probably results in a corresponding decrease in consumption of foods high in cholesterol and saturated fat."

The research involved 20 healthy subjects, four men and 16 women, whose average age was 30. For the first week of the study, all of the participants ate their usual diets. Blood samples were taken to determine each subject's initial cholesterol level. Then, the participants were randomly divided into two groups.

For six weeks, in addition to their normal diets, they were given either several high-fiber oat bran muffins and entrees or low-fiber muffins and entrees made with Cream of Wheat and refined white flour. Neither group was told which type of food "supplements" they were getting.

After this six-week period, the subjects were given a two-week break. Then they received the other treatment for an additional six weeks. This way, the researchers could examine the effects of both the oat bran and refined wheat foods on each subject.

Blood samples taken at the beginning of the study and at the end of each six-week diet period were analyzed for cholesterol at the conclusion of the experiment.

The researchers found no significant differences in blood cholesterol levels during either the high-fiber (oat bran) or low-fiber (refined wheat) diet periods. At the end of each six-week period, cholesterol levels were about 14 mg/dl lower than during the initial baseline period (172 vs 186 mg/dl).

The diet records kept by participants revealed that during each of the six-week diet periods, the subjects had to adjust their normal food intake patterns to make room for the extra oat bran or refined wheat foods they were eating. They did this, in part, by eating less saturated fat and cholesterol. The researchers concluded that the decrease in blood cholesterol levels was caused by this reduction in saturated fat and cholesterol intake rather than the increased consumption of oat bran.

Because the Harvard study is the first one to include a low-fiber control group, its results are quite compelling, according to Kantor. He adds, however, that several points need to be considered:

• The study involved mostly young women. Would older men or women have reacted similarly?

• The subjects in this study started off with a relatively low average cholesterol level: 186 mg/dl. What would have happened if the initial cholesterol levels were much higher, say around 250 mg/dl?

• Previously conducted studies, while not as elegantly designed as this one, showed that soluble fiber in oats or beans did lower cholesterol, although sometimes the reductions were quite modest (about 3 percent).

• Recent studies with psyllium, a high-fiber grain used in some laxatives and a breakfast cereal, did find a cholesterol lowering effect attributed to soluble fiber.

"Practically speaking," Kantor says, "this new study doesn't really change things much. Although it throws some doubt on the ability of soluble fiber -- at least from oat bran -- to reduce serum cholesterol, it supports what experts have been saying all along: that eating less saturated fat is the most important dietary consideration in reducing levels of cholesterol in the blood.

"There's no reason to stop eating oat bran if you like it. But there also is no particular reason why you should begin eating it. If you eat a variety of foods from the different food groups -- especially lots of fruits, vegetables and legumes -- you'll be getting plenty of soluble fiber, plus many other important nutrients."

Blue Ball Bank

Farmers should not always fertilize with heavy nitrates after harvesting corn and rotating with alfalfa. Instead, they should wait, because excessive potash and nitrate fertilization in the alfalfa stage can impinge on proper plant growth.

Nitrogen tests should be conducted to "fine-tune and measure available nitrogen in the field to get a precise amount," said Ressler. Ressler's figures, taken from the Pennsylvania Agronomy Guide, indicate that a great deal of nitrogen is lost after spreading through manure. Ammonia and nitrogen gas are emitted in the atmosphere and nitrates are washed away.

End of June

Instead of applying manure too early in the season, Ressler recommends applying it at the end of June, when the crops require the nutrient the most.

The test should be performed on recently manured land following the application of forage legumes. A quicktest kit, available for about $200 from fertilizer companies or nutrient consultants, is available for farmers to do their own nitrogen test.

After the test is completed, a decision for nitrogen application should be made. Manure or other fertilizer should be applied based on manure history and analysis. At 12 inches tall, corn soil should be sampled 1 week before sidedressing.

Tests conducted at Penn State indicate that lab tests and quicktests are identical.

After the test

Of the farmers surveyed by the nutrient program after the test was complete, 14 percent decided to use the same fertilizer approach, 36 percent applied more fertizer, and 50 percent applied less.

"Farmers should always be careful about how fertilizer should be applied so there is less potential for nitrogen pollution," Ressler said.

Other speakers at the seminar included Karen Weiss of the Agricultural Preservation Board and Donald Ranck, dairy farmer. Boyd Wolff, state ag secretary and Noah Wenger, district legislator brought view points from the adminstrative and legislative areas of government. Everett Newswanger, editor of Lancaster Farming, spoke on the tipic: A Few Bumps In The Road To Future Farming.

Help farmers

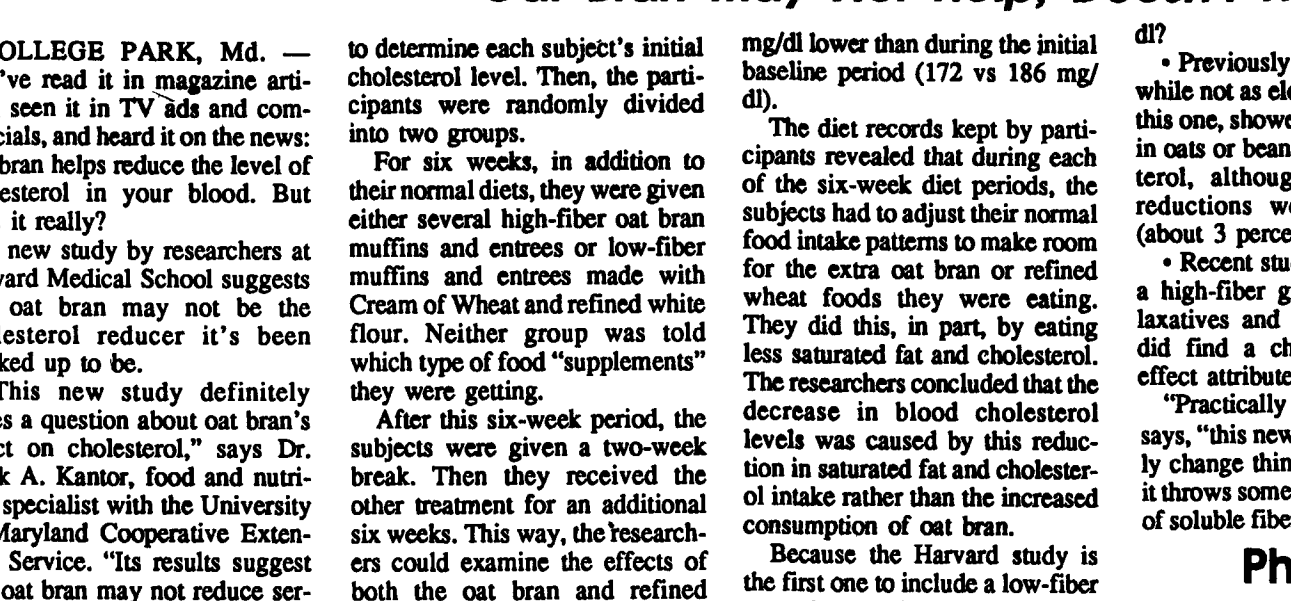
"Farming is quite different these days," said Allen Musser, chairman of the board of Blue Ball National Bank. "Years ago, $5,000 would buy you any good farm. You could buy land and bring forth anything on it. You didn't need a permit. Everything is different today."

Musser introduced the seminar and spoke of the need for these types of seminars to help the farmers manage their land in changing times.

"There are issues out there that we want farmers to know," said Kenneth P. Overly, assistant vice president of agriculture sales and service for the bank. "Over the next couple of years, farmers will have some hard decisions to make. Blue Ball Bank wants them to know these issues."

DEKALB boars must pass the strictest tests for performance.

Anything less is baloney.



If a boar fails to meet our standards, you can have him.

For lunch.

You see, for a boar to become a DEKALB boar, he must pass a strict package of tests. Or he ends up in a different kind of package.

How picky are we? Considering that we send more than half of our boars to the supermarket instead of the boar market... pretty picky.

We insist that a DEKALB boar offer the very best in performance.

Exhibit ready-to-breed aggressiveness.

And meet DEKALB's criteria for soundness.

So if you're as choosy as DEKALB, let's arrange a visit to one of our convenient Genetic Evaluation Stations. Just call DEKALB at 1-800-824-9773 inside Illinois; 1-800-433-2596 outside Illinois.

You'll only see our best...because anything less is baloney.

ALUMINUM FOIL INSULATION
GUARANTEED FOR LIFE

Direct factory to you sale on 1 million square feet of lifetime Radiant Barrier aluminum foil insulation. Designed for poultry & livestock buildings, metal buildings, hog farms, horse barns, cold storage houses, etc. . . Update & insulate metal buildings. Makes a cleaner & healthier environment, lower mortality rate. You will never have to reinsulate again. Buy any amount for 18¢ a square foot while it lasts. Farmers, growers, contractors & dealers inquiries welcome.

11 REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD CONSIDER RADIANT BARRIER INSULATION

1) Radiant Barrier has an insulating value equivalent to conventional types of insulation 8 times as thick.
2) Completely eliminates condensation, even in metal buildings
3) Controls Heat - Keeps environment considerably cooler in Summer months and warmer in the Winter months This will result in lower utility costs and healthier livestock.
4) Specially coated outer surfaces can take high pressure cleaning.
5) Resistant to stains, mildew, chemicals, abrasions and animal waste
6) Light reflective, provides a brighter work place with less lighting requirements.
7) Tough and durable, structurally very strong while still remaining flexible. Not affected by vermin, birds or any rodents.
8) Ease of installation and maintenance, there are no special clothing requirements needed like gloves, masks or eye protection. All you need is a staple gun and razor knife.
9) Radiant Barrier surpasses all building code requirements Fire resistance NFPA class A UBC class 1. Flame spread 25. Smoke density 15.
10) Radiant Barrier is not affected by moisture, so you will never have to reinsulate again. Radiant Barrier has been designed to last forever. A smart investment that will pay you forever.
11) Triple purpose, Radiant Barrier is a vapor barrier and has a high R-VALUE, but more important is that it reflects radiant heat. That's right! Just like a thermos bottle. It works with existing insulation with it's double sided barrier to reflect heat back in the direction that it came, to keep heat in or out Radiant Barrier will reflect 95% of all radiant heat. That means its twice as effective as conventional insulation There has never been a more cost effective solution to so many problems.

24 foot Ruff Neck trailer on left is Eby's workhorse. Trailer on the right is an economical, 16 foot Wrangler.

Get outstanding value in EVERY Eby trailer.

Whether it's a top-of-the-line Ruff Neck or an economical Wrangler, you know your livestock trailer is built to last if it's from Eby.

Aluminum construction is one of the main reasons these trailers are so durable and reliable. They'll never rust through or need welding. In fact, without ever being painted, an Eby livestock trailer will stay looking new for years.

Standard features make your Eby trailer a profitable investment. Extra-heavy axles, brakes, wheels and tires. Thick aluminum sheet flooring. Sturdy posts and rails. Even an aerodynamically designed front end is standard.

And, while standard features make even the economical Eby Wrangler far more than an average economy-model, we custom-build everything we make. So you tell us what you want. Choose from a long list of options. Select those features you need for your particular operation. Whether it's a Wrangler or deluxe Ruff Neck, the trailer you buy will be the trailer you need.

THE SLURRY MIXER
is built to handle your liquid manure agitating problems.

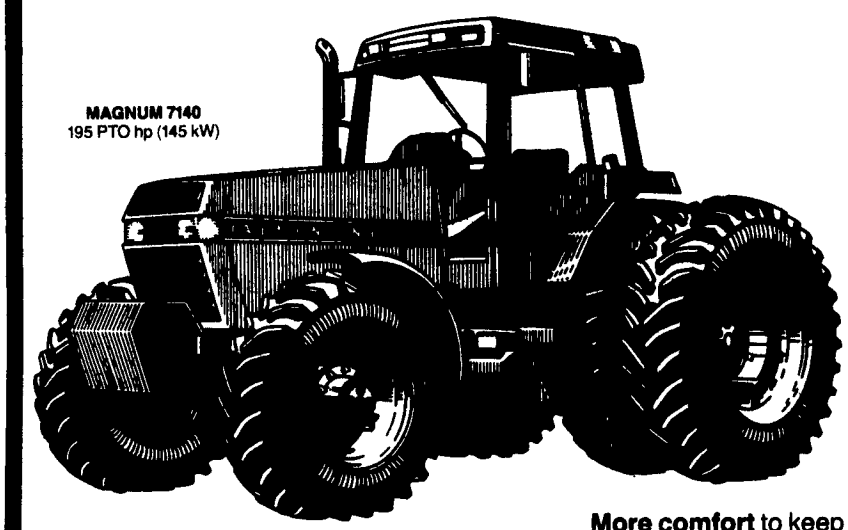
MAGNUM means more. Let us show you how much more!

MAGNUM 7140
195 PTO hp (145 kW)



BINKLEY & HURST BROS., INC. IS READY TO MAKE A GOOD DEAL ON A NEW CASE IH MAGNUM TRACTOR THAT IS IN STOCK! COME ON IN AND LET'S TALK!

Seeing is believing!
Which is why we encourage you to field-test a MAGNUM 7140 tractor.

From headlights to hitch, MAGNUM means more:

More power from a 505 cu. in. (8.3L) turbocharged and aftercooled engine. Expect to move through the tough spots with greater reserve power and higher torque rise. And, with exceptional fuel efficiency.

More performance from an 18-speed full powershift transmission. Shifting is smooth, nearly effortless. Shift up, down, even into reverse—without clutching.

More comfort to keep you feeling fresh. Roomy, quiet and tight, MAGNUM tractor cabs, with large expanses of tinted glass, assure increased visibility in every direction.

More reliability. MAGNUM tractors are covered by the best warranty in the business—5 years or 5000 hours, whichever occurs first*.

MAGNUM means more for your farming future. See us today for a demonstration on your farm.

*Excluding tires, which are covered by their own manufacturer's warranties A $200 deductible applies to each repair after the first year.

Buy In Feb. & Save $1,000

Binkley & Hurst Is Pleased To Announce The Addition Of The LILLISTON-Built BUSH HOG No-Till Drills To Our Product Line!

Bush Hog/Lilliston No-Tillage Seed Drills are designed to operate in maximum-severe field conditions and for uniform penetration of heavy stubble and hard soils. You can rely on proven quality, performance and durability—whether you select a 9670 drill with a 7'6" planting width or a big 9690 drill with a planting width of 10'6".

These rugged tools were developed for no-tillage applications of seed in one pass over unprepared land. 14-inch solid coulters slice through heavy stubble and 14-inch double disc openers open a slot and place the seed. Center rib gauge wheels hold the openers at the correct depth and firm soil around the seed. Up to 400 pounds of down pressure can be applied to each opener. Cluster gear boxes have two simple lever settings that make it easy to select any of 27 application rates.

Basic features of Bush Hog/Lilliston No-Tillage Drills include ease of operation and simple adjustments, as well as heavy duty construction, mobility and effective weight distribution.

Standard Equipment Includes: Double run feed cup, acre meter, weight box, parking jack, 12.4x24 bar-lug tires

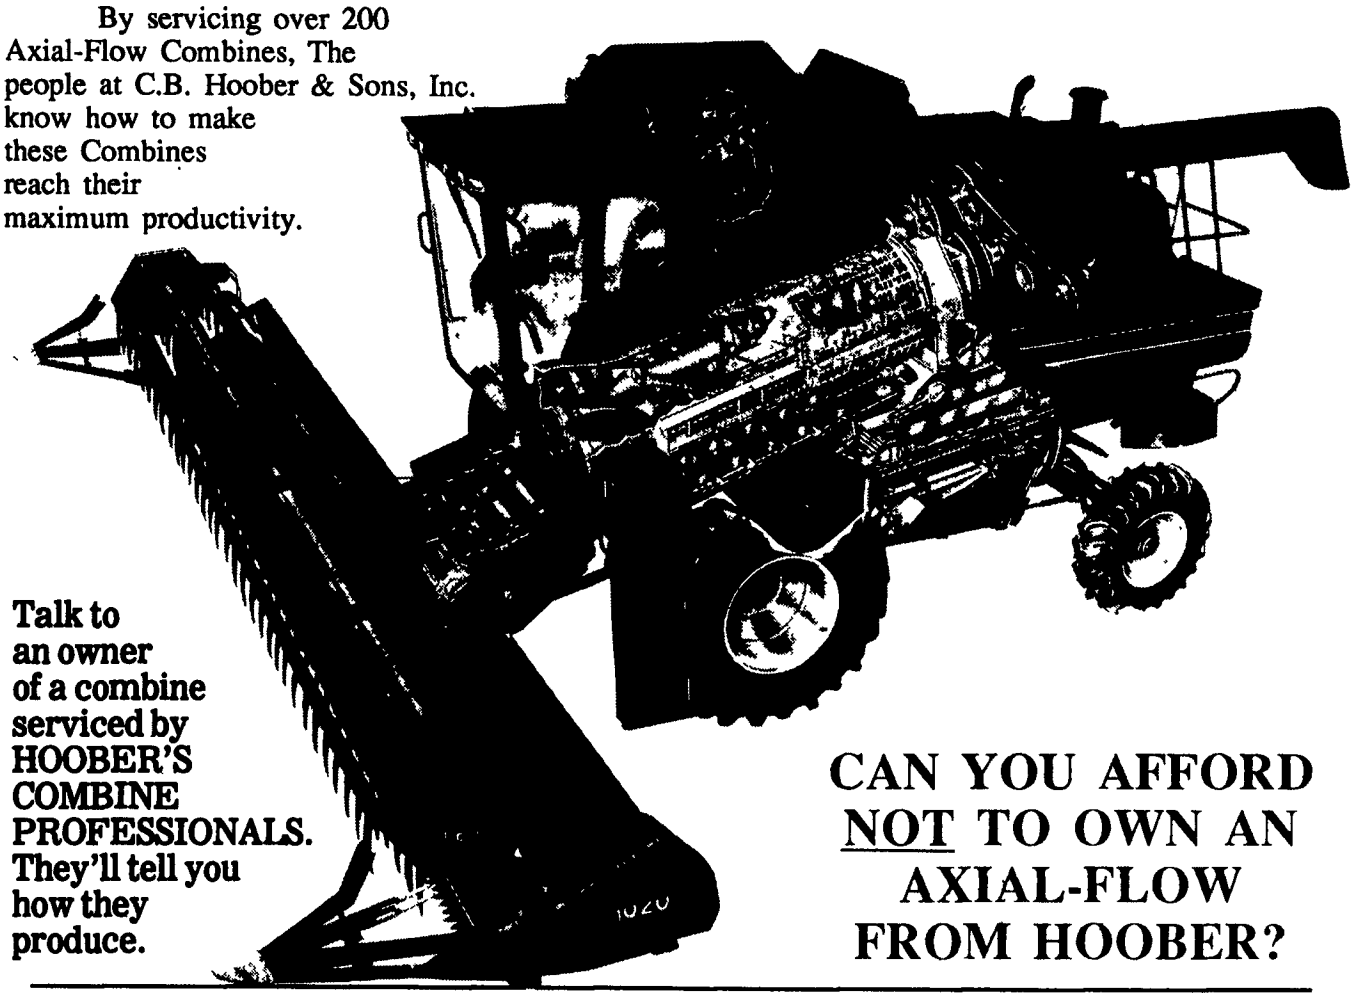
HOOBER PEOPLE MAKE AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES PRODUCE FOR YOU!

By servicing over 200 Axial-Flow Combines, The people at C.B. Hoober & Sons, Inc. know how to make these Combines reach their maximum productivity.



Talk to an owner of a combine serviced by HOOBER'S COMBINE PROFESSIONALS. They'll tell you how they produce.

CAN YOU AFFORD NOT TO OWN AN AXIAL-FLOW FROM HOOBER?

The Reason Axial-Flow Combines Are More Productive - THE ROTOR!

The Single Rotor design is SIMPLE!

Only a single rotor to thresh and separate. Eliminates the straw-walker assemblies common to conventional combines. Less moving parts means less maintenance, less downtime.

The Single Rotor Design is HIGHER QUALITY GRAIN

Multiple threshing action of axial-flow reduces kernal damage and holds elevator dockage to a minimum.

The Single Rotor Design is MORE PRODUCTIVITY!

When your crops are ripe and ready to harvest, Axial-Flow allows you to move faster than with a conventional combine. The rotor's large throat means no bottle-necks up front. You'll be able to harvest at top speed for maximum productivity, even on side-hills.

HESSTON THE PRIME LINE

The leader keeps leading

Introducing Hesston's 8200 self-propelled windrower

- Featuring 110" hay conditioning

Powered by a 77 HP Fiat Diesel or an optional 70 HP gas engine, the 8200 leads the way in big hay operations with it's optional 12-foot and 14-foot high capacity headers

The 8200 sets a new standard in operator comfort and convenience just a push of the switch sets the header floation header lift is controlled on the hydro command lever, it's all done from the seat of your pants in a quiet, roomy, air conditioned cab

The high speed sickle (1690 spm) drive is a good match for the crop-hungry fully engaged (110") hay conditioner

Introducing An ALL NEW Low-Cost Centerline Baler

- Hesston Model 4550 - 14" x 18" Square Baler

The economical Model 4550 is Hesston's newest entry in the square bale market Thanks to the exclusive "Centerline Design," this new baler builds the straightest, squarest bales possible And since it employs Hesston's preformed flake concept, leaves are saved and uniformly distributed throughout the bale

The low profile pickup sweeps windrows clean with less disturbance of the crop and the low profile of the 4550 gives the operator excellent visibility

The optional hydraulic powered bale thrower saves time and labor You control direction and distance from the tractor seat so your trailer can be filled side-tp-side and front-to-rear Bales can also be dropped without detaching thrower

The model 4550 is brought to you by Hesston See it at your dealer now!

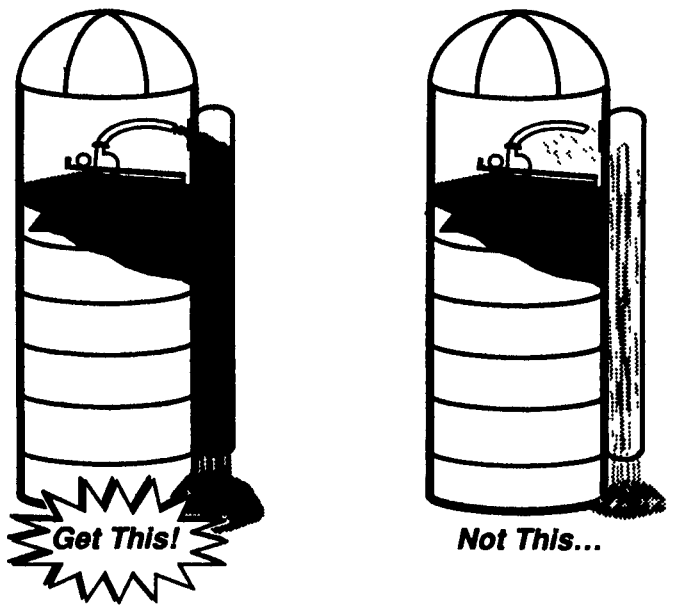
MILK AMERICA'S HEALTH KICK

Get the Power You Pay For With Van Dale DURAGLIDE™



The newest innovation in silo unloading—from Van Dale, of course—is the DURAGLIDE Impeller System, which dramatically increases throwing power while reducing power requirements.

The DURAGLIDE paddle and wrapper inserts are slicker than glass and more durable than stainless steel.

Reduces friction and gummy buildups in the impeller.

Results in silage out the door every time—no annoying trips up the silo!

See this revolutionary system today at your local Van Dale dealers.

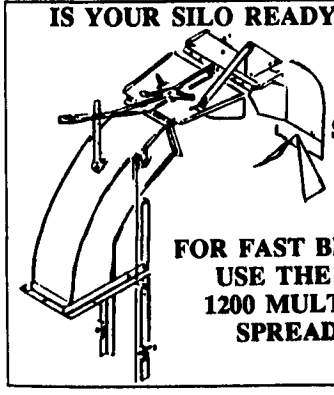
Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

S & S Silo Service Has Experience
Over 160 Silos Have Been Relined With Shotcrete

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?



FOR FAST BLOWING USE THE NEW 1200 MULTI-FLO SPREADER!

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

Use Well-Planned Strategy When Selecting Corn Hybrids

BY
ROBERT E. LEIBY and
DAVID L. DUNBAR
Lehigh County Cooperative Extension Office

Selecting Corn Hybrids

Greg Roth, Penn State agronomist, offers the following advice to corn growers:

Selecting the corn hybrids you plant next spring is one of the most important management decisions you will make. Because of this, it pays to spend some time and make careful choices based on a well-planned strategy.

Important factors to consider in your strategy include maturity, standability, disease resistance, yield potential, and cold tolerance. Also, you need to consider how you're planning to harvest the crop. Let's briefly consider how each of these factors should enter into your strategy.

First, maturity should be top priority. Hybrids are rated for maturity in several ways by seed companies, but the best way to narrow your choice is to compare the grain moisture at harvest of new hybrids to those that have worked well on your farm. Your final selection of hybrids for your entire farm should have some variation in maturity to give you some flexibility in harvesting and minimize your risks related to weather.

Longer Season Hybrids

Longer season hybrids generally have higher yield potentials, but also higher moisture which results in higher drying costs, delayed harvesting, and an increased potential for field losses. Be sure to consider these factors before you select hybrids that are much later than those adapted to your farm.

Once you have chosen those hybrids with the proper maturity, focus on yield potential. Commercially available hybrids can vary in yield by 40 bushels or more within a given maturity zone, so it is important to be sure that the hybrids you select are top performers.

The next important factor to consider is standability. Standability is an indicator of a plant's resistance to stalk and root rots. These can be particularly important where late-season stress or disease pressure is common, and where you expect to be harvesting late in the season. Having a hybrid that is standing well at harvest will decrease combining losses and speed the harvesting process.

If you have a specific disease or if you plant continuous no-till corn, disease resistance should be considered next in your strategy. In Pennsylvania, gray leaf spot and northern corn leaf blight are two of the most common and serious corn leaf diseases in Pennsylvania. Learn to identify these specific diseases in August and September so that you know exactly what may be limiting yields on your farm. Select hybrids with some resistance to the specific disease.

Consider Other Factors

Once you have selected a group of potential hybrids for your situation, consider other factors such as cold tolerance or seedling vigor for early planted fields, resistance to European corn borer if it has been a problem, and characteristics that affect harvesting such as ear height and how well the ear shells out.

For silage fields, hybrids should be those that produce the highest dry matter yields and can be up to about 10 days later in maturity than standard grain hybrids. As part of your strategy, you should be trying new varieties out each year on a limited acreage. If they perform well and their performance data looks good, incorporate them into your hybrid lineup.

To help you make your decisions, study comparisons found in the Pennsylvania Commercial Hybrid Corn Test reports (available at your county extension office), local hybrid strip plot results, and seed company product descriptions.

Classes For Small-Scale Part-Time Farmers

If you have some land, some extra time, and a special interest in at least one agricultural enterprise, you may want to participate in the "Small-Scale, Part-Time Farming" series being offered by Lehigh County Extension Office from late February through April.

All sessions, except the field trip on Saturday, April 28, will be at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesdays, February 17 through April 24, at the Lehigh County Agricultural Center, Room 108, Dorney Park Road, Allentown.

Subjects will include soil basics, plant nutrition, pest control, vegetable culture, fruit culture, preserving home-grown foods, managing agronomic crops and farm animals, ornamental horticulture, financial considerations, and marketing.

The course registration fee is $25.00 per person or $30.00 per couple. The fee covers printed materials, one Penn State soil testing kit, demonstration expenses, field trip expenses, and refreshments. Registrations are limited and will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis.

If you have "farming fever," the course will help you sort out personal or family goals and reasons for wanting to farm. Your goals might range from making money, to saving money, to reducing losses, to enriching family life, to developing a personal hobby.

The course will also help you evaluate the costs and beneifts of various enterprises. Perhaps, most importantly, it will provide information and skills to help you manage your enterprise successfully.

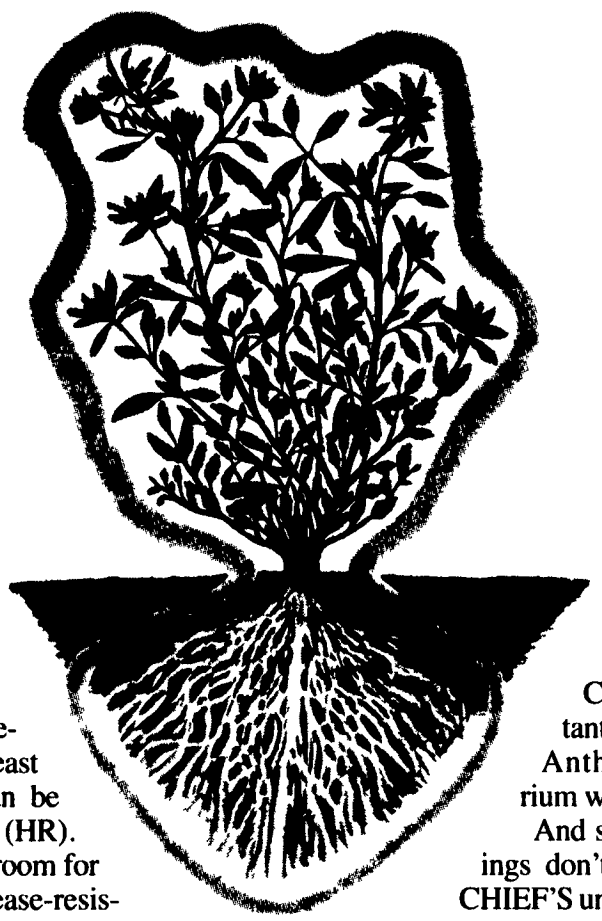
CHIEF® ALFALFA
from Jacques
VERY HIGHLY RESISTANT (VHR)



Actually, there is no VHR disease resistance rating for alfalfa. But there should be. Because anything with at least a 51% survival rate can be called highly resistant (HR). And that leaves a lot of room for differences in the disease-resistant varieties on the market today.

Take CHIEF Alfalfa from Jacques, for example. It gets lumped in with all the other HR varieties for Phytophthora Root Rot and Bacterial Wilt resistance, the two most damaging alfalfa diseases.

Yet no other variety even comes close to CHIEF'S high levels of resistance.* Even more remarkable, CHIEF is also resistant to Verticillium wilt, Anthracnose and Fusarium wilt.

And something else the ratings don't tell you: Even with CHIEF'S unequalled disease resistance, you don't have to give up big yields, fast regrowth or top-quality forage. It's all there in one nice, neat package.

Seed some this spring and see for yourself. CHIEF: the very highly resistant alfalfa — from Jacques. Call 1-800-472-3010 for the name of the Jacques dealer nearest you.

Stoltzfus Receives Perry Co. Extension Award

Jonas K. Stoltzfus, Loysville, received the Extension Award at the annual meeting of Perry County cooperative extension.

The award is presented to an individual who has shown interest and involvement in extension programming and has helped further the educational programs and goals of Perry County cooperative extension.

Stoltzfus' involvement with the extension started as he served on the 4-H Program Development Committee for four years, providing leadership as president of that board for one year. He went on to serve as a 4-H leader for 5 years, and also served on the Livestock Promotion Committee for several years.

Stoltzfus served on the extension board of directors for 5 years and provided leadership to that committee as vice-president. Last month, he took time to assist with an extension-sponsored tour for Canadian dairymen to Perry County.

During the Extension Annual Meeting, the Perry County Soil Conservation District awraded its top awards for 1989. Receiving honors as Conservation Farmer of the Year were Charles Beaver of Millerstown and Richard Metz, Jr., of Loysville. Both men were honored with certificates and presented with large wooden signs to place on their farms.

Jonas Stoltzfus, right, receives the Perry County Extension Award from Mary Jo Cook, central region assistant director, at the Perry County extension annual meeting.

Dave Roth, a Perry County Soil Conservation District director for 39 years, was bestowed the title of lifetime honorary district director by special act of the county commissioners. Current district board president Robert Cauffman, Millerstown, presented Roth with a certificate stating his lifetime director distinction.

Paul Britcher, president of the Perry County Fair Board, received a check for $1,634.80 from the county 4-H Program. The funds, raised this past year by Perry County 4-H members, were designated to help the fair offset the cost of the new barn constructed at the fairgrounds last year.

Elected to terms on the extension executive board of directors was Mary Conrad, Millerstown; Virgil Gutshall, Jr., Blain; and Alan Kretzing, Loysville.

William King, retired county agent from Armstrong County, presented the entertainment, a multi-media slide show entitled "Trip Along the Appalachians."

SANITIZING AGENTS AND THE POULTRY INDUSTRY

By Forest Muir
Professor of Poultry Science

Fumigation of hatching eggs and incubators with formaldehyde gas has been used successfully in the poultry industry to control microbes.

Difficulties associated with formaldehyde fumigation and the action of EPA to regulate the use of formaldehyde under the Toxic Substance Control Act have led researchers to investigate alternative methods of egg shell and hatchery sanitization.

Two recent manuscripts in the Poultry Science Journal evaluated alternatives to formaldehyde fumigation use in the poultry industry. In the first study, the effects of washing hatching eggs in water containing quaternary ammonium or quaternary ammonium plus formalin were compared to formaldehyde fumigation. The various sanitizing agents were compared for 7-day embryo survival, hatchability, and microbiological populations on the shell surface.

Seven-day embryo survival and hatchability of the eggs washed in the quaternary ammonium or quaternary ammonium plus formalin solutions were comparable to the eggs fumigated with formaldehyde. There were no significant differences between the sanitizing agents in total numbers of bacteria detected on the shells of the eggs.

The second study compared the use of ozone and formaldehyde fumigation for disinfecting poultry hatchers. The researchers inoculated various species of bacteria onto filter paper strips and exposed the strips to ozone or formaldehyde in incubators. The triple-strength formaldehyde fumigation was more lethal than the ozone, but the ozone killed more than 99 percent of the starting microbiological populations.

The results of these studies would indicate that some viable alternatives are available to the poultry industry should formaldehyde fumigation be prohibited.

Pork Industry Introduces First Physician Program

CHICAGO, ILL. — About 15,000 internal medicine specialists will receive the first dose of pork nutrition education, potentially reaching 375,000 consumers, according to Bruce Paterson, Ph.D., Pork Industry Group director of programs.

"Healthy Choices," a checkoff-funded program to help physicians give out correct nutritional information, includes everyday tips that consumers can easily apply for better dietary health. These tips include how to choose the leanest cuts of pork in the meat case, low fat preparation methods, and low fat restaurant dining. The underlying theme in "Healthy Choices" is moderation and common-sense nutrition, said Paterson. "The first priority with this program was to develop something that doctors would view as credible and give to their patients."

The Pork Industry Group will market "Healthy Choices" to internists in eight metropolitan cities, which includes New York, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Boston, Atlanta, Miami and Washington, D.C.

"Healthy Choices" comes in pads of 25 and includes information on how to receive additional free pads. "Doctors are used to tear-off pads for writing prescriptions on and distributing a variety of information with, so this was an ideal format for us to use," Paterson said.

Pork producers have placed top priority on reaching physicians. The Pork Industry Group has a strategic plan to accomplish this, involving educational materials and public relations events to build a solid working relationship with key physician organizations and thought leaders.

Vegetable Newsletter Launched

NEWARK, Del. — University of Delaware cooperative extension is offering a newsletter for commercial vegetable production, according to Ed Kee, extension vegetable specialist.

The "Vegetable and Fruit Crop Weekly Update" will be available to subscribers from April 15 through October 1.

"The newsletter, designed for growers, processors and commercial representatives, will provide the most current information available on topics that affect Delaware vegetable production," said Kee.

Kee, other extension specialists, and agricultural agents will contribute information on pest outbreaks, threshold levels, control measures, weed control, crop production, and many other topics that relate to vegetable and fruit production.

The newsletter costs $20 per season, and will be mailed first-class on Fridays to subscribers.

Checks should be made payable to the University of Delaware and sent to "Vegetable and Fruit Crop Weekly Update," c/o Ed Kee, RD 2, Box 48, Georgetown, DE 19947.

Market For Organically Grown Produce Increases

DOVER, Del. — Consumers across the country have become increasingly interested in organic agriculture as controversies over pesticides, hormone injections, and drug residues have raged in the media.

While much of the furor over food safety has been caused by misinformation, the farming community can't ignore the fact that there is a growing market for organically-grown produce.

In order to evaluate the extent of organic agriculture production and marketing activity in the state, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's marketing and product development section conducted a survey of Delaware's farm market owners and managers.

Scott Hunter, a graduate student working for the department, conducted the survey. He concluded there is significant activity involving organic produce. He noted, though, that since this is the first survey of its kind conducted in Delaware, "results won't reflect any measure of growth or trends in activity involving organic agriculture."

Hunter also pointed out that no standard definition of organic agriculture was offered to survey respondents because there is no universally accepted definition. "It's likely that producers, marketers and consumers have varied expectations of organic products," he said.

Fifty-one marketers were surveyed. Results show that 20 percent can be considered involved in organic produce; 20 percent reported significant consumer interest in organic produce; 18 percent producers expressing interest in selling organic produce; 35 percent felt their operation would be involved with organic produce in the future; and 79 percent felt there should be a set of standards or regulations concerning organic agriculture.

The statistics reveal that while more organic produce was sold in New Castle and Kent counties, more was grown in Sussex.

Crops currently being produced organically include peppers, squash, cucumbers, strawberries, carrots, apples, peaches, blueberries, and cantaloupes.

More marketers in Sussex County than in Kent or New Castle expected to become involved with organic agriculture in the future. Significantly more New Castle County marketers believed there should be regulations governing organic agriculture, while respondents in the southern counties were less in favor of regulations.

The survey did not ask marketers whether regulations governing the production and distribution of organic products should be instituted on a state or federal level. The marketing staff feels regulations of organic or low-input food products should be developed and administered by the federal government because an item considered organic in one state may not fit the criteria in another state without national standards. In addition, the staff believes that USDA is better equipped to administer this type of program in conjunction with its existing fruit and vegetable inspection service.

Bill Sammons, marketing manager, said survey results indicate there is interest in organic agriculture. However, he doesn't think the interest warrants the introduction of a major organic marketing program at this time.

"We have to be careful if and when we do become involved in an organic marketing program that we avoid any implication that non-organic produce is harmful," Sammons said. "That would be disastrous for our farmers because it's simply not true."

For now, the department will work with other agricultural groups to monitor local interest in organic agriculture and developments at the federal level.

Some Words About 'Animal Rights'

By Dr. Richard Barczewski
Extension County Ag. Agent
University of Delaware

Mixed-Up Priorities

On November 20, 1989, at 8:03 a.m., Adam Henry Barczewski was born, weighing 6 pounds 8 ounces and measuring 20½ inches in length. I can't tell you how overjoyed my wife Ruthie and I felt at the birth and every moment since. I know there'll be some trials and tribulations, but for now, we are just excited about our new baby boy.

Along with the arrival of our child came much well-wishing from our family and friends. With some of these wishes came gifts; quite a few were stuffed animals. I was standing over the crib, looking at my son one evening, when it dawned on me that, right from birth, we make bonds with animals.

Since my wife and I are employed in occupations involving animals, most of the stuffed toys were farm animals. This has both good and bad points. I know that I'll do my best to explain to my son as he grows that animals need to be properly cared for on a daily basis. In addition, I'm sure we'll have some frank discussions about using animals for food and why I feel it is a good idea. I hope he'll want to become involved in 4-H livestock projects and learn to care properly for the animals he raises.

I also hope he gains an appreciation for life and a love for agriculture. But it will be difficult considering the number of misinformed individuals in our society.

Eating meat

The other day, while reading my Sunday newspaper, I read a letter to the editor which used a biblical approach to condemn abortion, capital punishment, and eating meat. The writer referred to "Thou shall not kill" when covering each issue. It's a real shame that anyone equates abortion and capital punishment with eating meat.

When someone values the life of an animal over the life of a human being, their reasoning must be questioned.

This is a prime example of the mentalities we must deal with when it comes to the animal rights movement. It is also a clue to the lack of knowledge these people have when addressing some of these issues. This person obviously doesn't know the Bible very well.

I don't profess to be a biblical expert. I do know that the Bible has a passage about killing the fatted calf for a feast when the prodigal son returned home. The Bible contains many stories of animal sacrifice. As a matter of fact, one book in the Old Testament tells how many animals should be sacrificed, how it should be done, and why.

Someone said that if his dog and his father were going to be hit by a car, he didn't know which one he'd save. Give me a break! The fact that this individual would even consider rescuing his dog over his parent in absurd.

All references to using animals for food are not in the Old Testament either. In one story I recall two fishes and five loaves were used to feed 5,000 people. Occupations such as fishermen were frequently mentioned, as were shepherds. The letter writer was just manipulating the information for his cause.

Animals more respect

It's too bad that we have given animals the same, or even more, respect than we give people. Recently, an acquaintance said he knew someone who said that if his dog and his father were going to be hit by a car, he didn't know which one he'd save. Give me a break! The fact that this individual would even consider rescuing his dog over his parent is absurd.

We have done a great job over the years in removing the public from agriculture. We've also been successful in making animals more like people. From cuddly toys to animated cartoons and motion pictures, animals aren't looked upon as being different from people anymore by some in our society.

It's unfortunate that we are partially to blame for this. But I honestly believe we can make a difference in the way people view livestock and other animals. We must begin to fight back. When people make inaccurate statements about our production practices, it's our obligation to set the record straight.

We're not dealing with rational people, either. After all, when someone values the life of an animal over the life of a human being, their reasoning must be questioned. The same goes for equating meat eating with capital punishment. It's time that some of the confusion be clarified with facts. We in agriculture are the best group to set the record straight.

Tractor Safety Training

Because of hazards associated with the operation of farm tractors and other farm equipment, the U.S. Department of Labor has established a safety training program for 14 and 15 year-old tractor operators who will be working for pay on farms away from home. In the Lehigh Valley, this training is also offered to all others who want it.

This year's course will begin at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, March 1 at the Lehigh County agricultural Center, Room 108, Dorney Park Road, Allentown. Subsequent sessions will be held on thursday evenings at the following times and places:

- 7:30 p.m., March 8, Lehigh County Agricultural Center
- 7:30 p.m., March 15, Lehigh Ag Equipment, Chapmans
- 7:30 p.m., March 22, Lehigh County Agricultural Center
- 7:30 p.m., March 29, Lehigh County Agricultural Center
- 5:30 p.m., April 5, Lehigh Ag Equipment, Chapmans

The course will stress safety and will provide instruction on tractor instruments and controls, maintenance and safety checks, starting and stopping procedures, power takeoff, and hydraulic systems and hitches.

Participants who successfully complete written and driving examinations at the end of the course will receive certificates. No pre-registration is needed, but attendance at all sessions is important. Phone (215) 391-9840 for more information.

The Vermeer Gator Mowers are available in 7-, 8-, and 9-foot models and feature a solid reinforced frame and an easy-maintenance cutting bed design.

Vermeer Introduces Gator Mowers

PELLA, IOWA — Powerful, low-profile disc mowers, designed for faster, dependable cutting action in all kinds of terrain, have been introduced by Vermeer Manufacturing Co.

The Vermeer Gator Mowers — available in 7-, 8- and 9-foot models — feature a solid reinforced frame and an easy-maintenance cutting bed design that requires less horsepower and fuel. All three units come equipped with independent, synchronized cutting discs; reversible heat-tempered, break-resistant cutting knives; tough protective shields; and a quick-turn hydraulic life system for faster handling on the run or in transport.

The Gator Mower is ideal in rugged fields, wet trampled hay, gopher mounds, and ant hills. The entire cutting bed is powered by one through-bolt. Each disc is an independent cutting head driven by a flexible steel shaft.

Therefore, you can operate longer at much greater vertical angles. And, you can change or repair the discs individually. By removing one easy-access hex nut, you are ready to slide off the individual cutting disc in seconds. The special pressed steel discs rotate in opposite directions (including the top-hat end disc) over the entire width of the mower bed to reduce wrapping or jamming.

Fertilizer Coulter Hub Reduces Blade Slop, Wobble

ASSARIA, KS — The new fertilizer coulter from Ausherman GP. a division of Great Plains, offers accurate placement of liquid, dry, or suspension fertilizer.

The precision, machined coulter hub reduces coulter blade slop and wobble. This feature, combined with knife adjustment, allows the fertilizer knife to be kept close to the coulter blade with as much as 2 inches of coulter wear, minimizing plugging. The coulter can be allowed to swivel or it can be locked for rigid operation.

Each fertilizer coulter is adjustable for depth. The blade itself is a 17 inch fluted coulter blade. Every fertilizer knife is tempered and hard-surfaced for long wear and features a stainless steel fertilizer tube.

Durability is also increased by the heavy-duty greasable hub, double-lipped grease seals, and tapered roller bearings.

These fertilizer coulters fit most common planters. They can be mounted directly on the frame or on the front bar with an optional kit.

For information, contact Ausherman GP, PO Box 218, Assaria, KS 67416, (913) 667-4755.

Ford Tedder Sprays 18-Ft. Hay Swath

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The new Model 163 pull-type hay tedder from Ford New Holland teds and spreads hay in a swath nearly 18 feet wide.

"This is the machine for larger acreage hay growers," said Joe Weicksel, product manager.

Weicksel said the tedder will deal with a pair of 9-foot mower-conditioner swaths in a single pass. "The large-acreage capacity is important when there's a race to get over the crop before the morning dew is lost," he said.

"These machines are designed for grass crops, but they can speed curing in legumes with careful management. To minimize leaf loss, it is important to complete the field before leaves are dry enough to shatter or break. Alfalfa that is cut in the evening may cure faster if it is tedded the next morning while damp with dew," Weicksel said.

The Model 163 spindle and axle adjusting system has been designed to simplify adjustment and wheel positioning. The outer rotors fold back for transport through narrow lanes and gates.

The Ford New Holland Model 163 tedder has a 17-foot 9-inch working width. The unit is designed for larger acreage hay producers who are in a race with the sun to ted large fields before morning dew evaporates.

Thurston Offers Auto-Reset Shanks On Blu-Jet Sub-Tiller II

THURSTON, NB — Thurston Manufacturing's BLU-JET Sub-Tiller II, the conservation deeptillage machine, is now available with auto reset shanks.

The auto-reset feature saves time in the field because the shanks quickly reset themselves on the go. The operator doesn't leave the tractor.

All Sub-Tiller II shanks feature quick-change points that allow one machine to handle both summer and fall tillage requirements. Summer-till points, designed for use in standing row crops, increase moisture absorption 10 inch to 14 inch deep without root disturbance.

The fall till points penetrate 14 inch to 18 inch deep to fracture soil up to 20 inches on either side of the shank. Because Sub-Tiller II distrubs very little surface residue, erosion can be controlled in compliance with the requirements of the 1985 Conservation Act.

The BLU-JET Sub-Tiller II is available in 2, 3, 5, 7, and 9 shank units, with either 3-point or pull-type hitch. For information, contact Thurston Mfg. Co., P.O. Box 218, Thurston, NB 68062, (402) 385-3041.

New Cargill Corn Hybrids Available

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Six new corn hybrids for spring planting are available to Eastern farmers from Cargill Hybrid Seeds.

"These hybrids passed our performance qualifications after being tested in company research plots for four years and in on-farm plots for two years," said Richard Morse, regional crops manager, Geneva, New York. "Many farmers have seen the hybrids as experimental numbers, and they now are available in limited quantities."

These following corn hybrids are available:

• Cargill Hybrid Seeds 3427 — 95-day relative maturity. This new hybrid has shown excellent yield potential, even under stressful conditions. It displays vigorous growth, stalk quality is good, and it is well adapted to cold northern soils. It is an attractive hybrid with medium plant height.

• Cargill Hybrid Seeds 3637 — 98-day relative maturity. The hybrid yields very well under good growing conditions, especially in irrigated areas. It has excellent fiber quality for silage and has a tendency to tiller.

• Cargill Hybrid Seeds 4137 — 103-day relative maturity. Very good yield potential and root quality are important characteristics of this new hybrid. It dries quickly and has a short, girthy ear. Given its determinant or fixed-ear size, it performs best under higher plant populations.

Cargill Hybrid Seeds 5327 — 108-day relative maturity. The hybrid has outstanding yield potential. it is medium tall and has been selected for improved corn-borer resistance, good stalk quality, drydown, and overall plant health. It is a good dual-purpose hybrid.

Cargill Hybrid Seeds 8427 — 118-day relative maturity. This hybrid has very good disease tolerance, stay-green quality, and standability. It has yielded especially well east of the Mississippi River.

Cargill Hybrid Seeds 9027 — 120-day relative maturity. The tallness of this hybrid makes it a good choice for grain or silage. It has excellent yield potential under good management and good environmental conditions. The hybrid has exhibited excellent results in southern regions, where it can take advantage of the longer growing season.

Cargill Hybrid Seeds maintains hybrid testing stations at Geneva, New York; Leola, Pennsylvania; and Greenville, North Carolina. Research personnel in addition to Morse include plant breeders Thomas Ishler and Mike Forster and research technicians Heidi MacIntyre and Randy Hegwer.

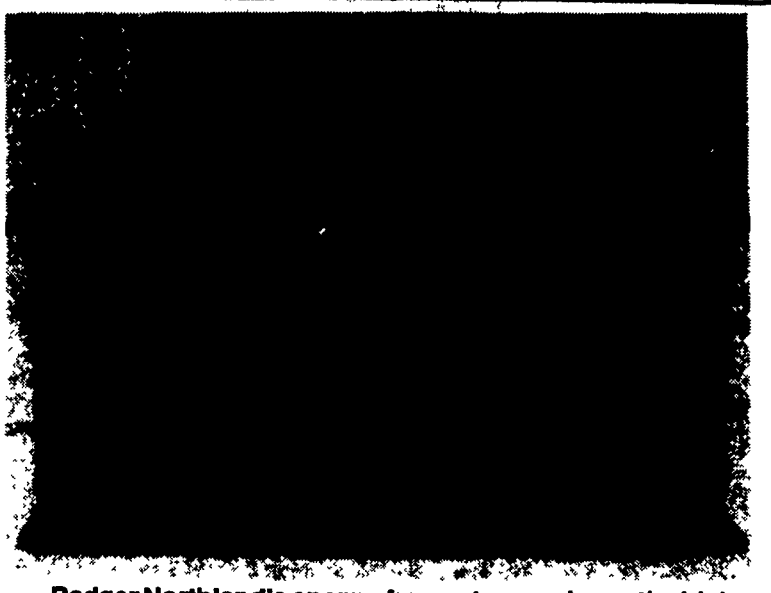
Automatic Equipment Restructures Management

PENDER, NB P Automatic Equipment Manufacturing Company has announced a restructuring plan that will see their newly designated district sales managers' duties enlarged to include all of Automatic's product lines. Previously, the territory managers had been primarily responsible for dealer sales of agricultural products.

In their enhanced capacity, the district sales managers will oversee dealer, distributor, and OEM sales of Automatic's products in the agricultural, recreational vehicle, marine, industrial, and rental industries, as well as representing Automatic's custom manufacturing division.

Jay Hesse, president of automatic Equipment said, "Our people have the product knowledge, and we have confidence that they will provide excellent support to our customers, dealers, and distributors in all the industries in which we are involved."

The district sales managers are responsibile for eight districts covering the United States and Canada.



Badger Northland's energy-free waterer reduces the high cost of watering cattle, horses, hogs, and sheep by eliminating the need for electricity and the possibility of shock or stray voltage. The waterer's proven, patented design features a durable double wall which is superinsulated (R-value = 7.14 per inch) to retain the heat provided by ground water.

Badger Northland's Waterer Reduces Cost Of Watering

KAUKAUNA, WI — An energy-free waterer designed to efficiently provide temperature-regulated drinking water for livestock through a safer, more cost-effective means than electrically-operated waterers is available from Badger Northland.

Badger Northland's energy-free waterer reduces the high cost of watering cattle, horses, hogs and sheep by eliminating the need for electricity and the possibility of shock or stray voltage. The waterer's proven, patented design features a durable double wall which is super insulated (R-value = 7.14 per inch) to retain the heat provided by ground water. Any ground water heat that is gradually lost over time is naturally replenished by the animals' drinking activity. A minimum of 20 gallons, which waters 8 to 10 animals, will keep the unit operational even in sub-zero temperatures.

Two models are available: a 10-gallon hog waterer (38-inch x 19-inch x 20-inch) designed to handle up to 150 hogs or 120 cattle. Both models feature insulated flaps which eliminate the need for balls or floats that can ice over and pulleys or cables that eventually rust out. In addition, the unit's baffles guard against icing and keep the non-siphoning DuraPride UPI-24 valve operating under the most severe conditions.

Other features of the Badger waterer include a removable top for easy access to plumbing, a 1-inch flange for easy anchoring, and a sealed bottom to keep out moisture and prevent algae build-up. Badger engineers have also designed the new unit with a seamless sidewall body to prevent leakage and two 2-inch drain holes for fast, efficient clean out.

For more information, contact: Chet Gibbons, Badger Northland Inc., 1215 Hyland Avenue, P.O. Box 1215, Kaukauna WI 54130-9986, or call (414) 766-4603.

Pork Board Increases Checkoff Funding

DES MOINES, Iowa — At its January meeting, the National Pork Board took steps to increase 1990 checkoff programming by $1.25 million.

The proposal is the result of increased 1990 revenue projections and use of surplus funds to bring this year's $26.25 million budget more in line with the last two years. Program proposals are now being accepted by the board, who will review the proposals and finalize the funding in early March.

The Board reviewed preliminary 1989 financial figures indicating that the checkoff had generated $27.1 million, including interest. A total of $28.1 million, including surplus funds from previous years, was spent on promotion, research, and consumer information programs during the year.

The Board adopted revised 1990 funding allocations of $16.5 million to the National Pork Producers Council. The money will fund consumer promotion and information, retail merechandising, product and production research, foodservice promotion, and foreign market development.

During his report, Hilman Schroeder, president of the National Pork Board, reported that he believes that the Board and producers have reached a satisfactory solution with the USDA conserning a disagreement over the interpretation of how checkoff funds can be used. Schroeder told Board members that USDA now agrees the law provides for the use of checkoff funds for contacts with state or federal governmental officals on non-legislative or regulatory issues of importance to pork producers.

The law prohibits the use of checkoff funds for lobbying purposes, which the Pork Board never questioned. However, some uncertainties had arisen over the ability to utilize checkoff funds in connection with contacting governmental officials for consultation on such issues as food safety, where industry and government coordination is necessary.

"Now that we have reached this middle ground, I hope we can proceed in our efforts to advance the success of producer checkoff programs," Schroeder said. "The Board recognizes the law contains certain limitations and among them are checkoff funding of state and national trade association activities."

Schroeder advised pork producers who have concerns on public policy issues that do not fall within the framework of checkoff funded programs to get actively involved in their state and national pork producer associations, who can utilize unrestricted (non-checkoff) funds for those purposes.

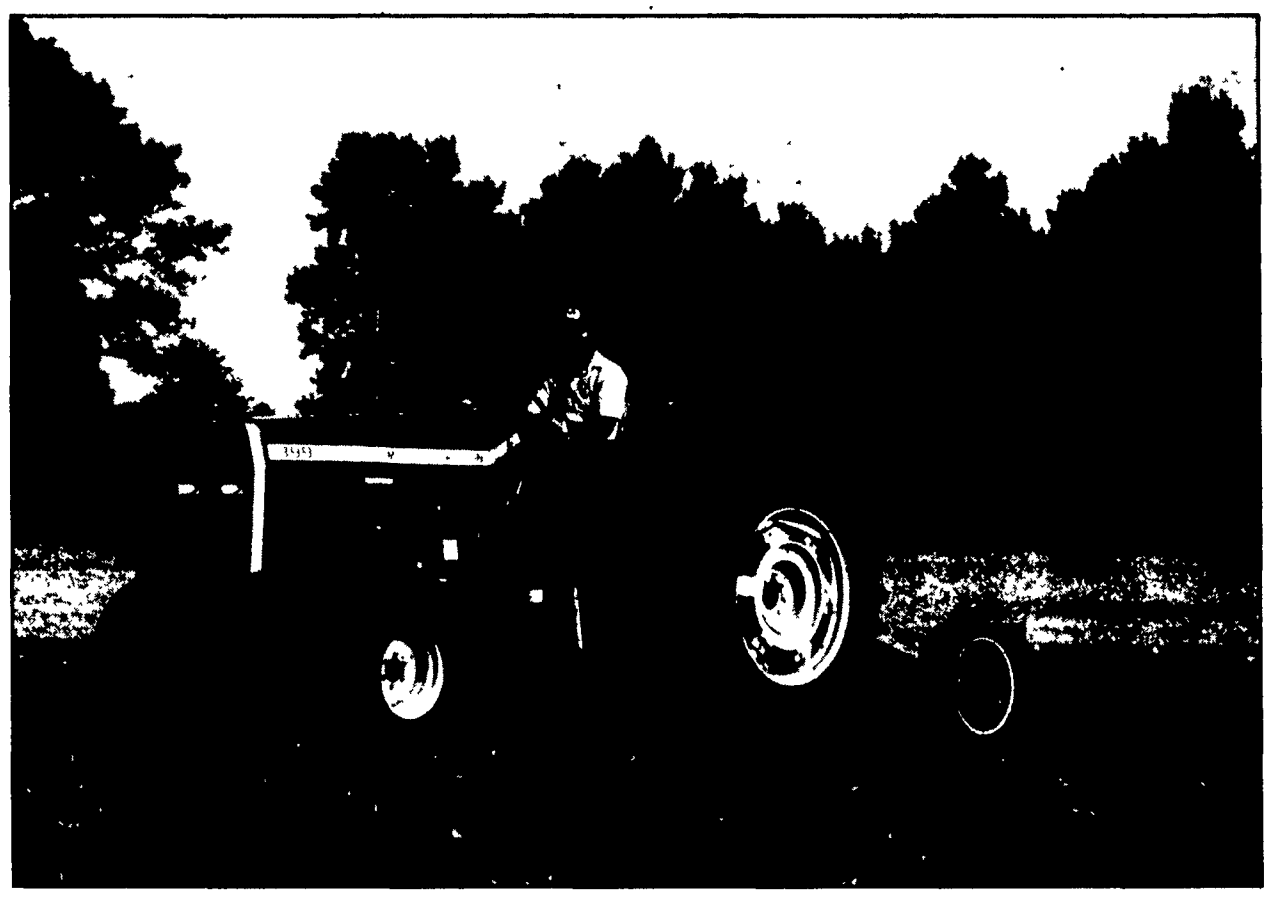
Who makes the most practical tractors?



Last year, more value-minded farmers picked Massey-Ferguson than any other make.

In fact, one of every five tractors now sold in the Western World is an M-F. Which makes Massey-Ferguson the Western World's largest tractor manufacturer.

One of the big reasons for this popularity is the great value of the 50-90 PTO hp line of M-F 300 Series tractors.

They all give you the torque, economy and reliability of world-famous Perkins diesel engines and all the advantages of advanced Ferguson system hydraulics. Plus you get the practical features you want, like hydrostatic steering as standard equipment.

Massey-Ferguson engineers put a lot of time and effort into designing these tractors to save more of your time and effort. They're incredibly easy to operate and maintain. And they have one of the best reliability records of any tractor ever made.

Better ask your M-F dealer soon to show you why an M-F 300 Series tractor can be the best value for your hard-earned investment.

Practical choices.

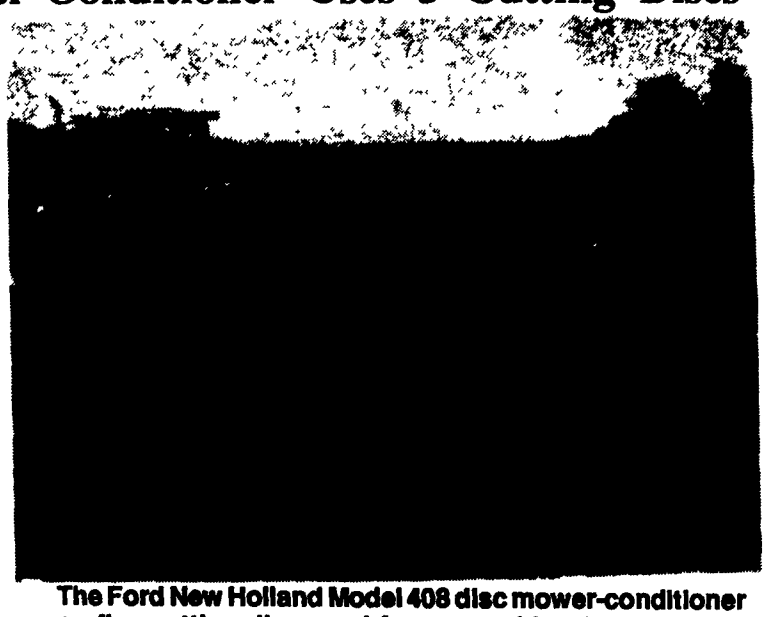
Ford Disc Mower-Conditioner Uses 5 Cutting Discs

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — A new Discbine® disc mower-conditioner from Ford New Holland is useful in difficult conditions that can pose a problem for sickle bars.

The Model 408 uses five 2,555 rpm disc units to cut an 8-foot by 3-inch swath. No tools are needed to change the discharge from a narrow windrow to a 66-inch swath.

"Intermeshing chevron-design rubber conditioner rolls speed drying and minimize leaf loss in both grass and legume crops," said Joe Weicksel, manager. The conditioner is designed to pass slugs without plugging.

"Cutting capacity is excellent," said Weicksel, "due to very responsive header flotation and disc cutting that handles fire-ant and gopher mounds and wet stubble conditions that would stall a sickle-type mower." These machines usually don't even slow down in the wet, lodged and tangled crops where others stall," said Weicksel.



The Ford New Holland Model 408 disc mower-conditioner uses five cutting discs and features rubber intermeshing chevron-design conditioner rolls. Discs handle wet, tangled crops with fire-ant or gopher mounds.

The mower-conditioner maneuvers through narrow gates and lanes. Towing and cutting width are identical because of flip-up side shields and a centered towing position that lets the machine tow directly behind the tractor.

How To Install A Pump

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A guide to submersible pump installation is available from Penn State Cooperative Extension. The nine-page publication summarizes important standards for the correct installation of submersible pumps in residences. The booklet covers both the mechanical and electrical aspects of installation.

"A home water supply system directly affects the occupants' quality of life and may also affect property values," says Dr. Jon M. Carson, Penn State assistant professor of agricultural engineering and one of the authors of the publication. "Most of us take a consistent supply of clean water for granted. Planning is essential for those replacing or installing a new submersible pump."

Carson says that the pump is the heart of a home water supply system. The selection of a pump and its installation affects the performance, maintenance and costs throughout the water system's operational life.

Carson advises buyers to explore options before making this major purchase. Once purchased, proper installation and maintenance of the pump should ensure years of reliable service.

The source of water and how it is distributed determines the submersible pumping system required. Accurate records should be kept on each part of the system for future maintenance needs. These may be important when selling the home.

The water source, the pumping system and the distribution system are the three basic elements that should be considered for a total water supply system. The type of residential installation described in the guide is only one of many used in Pennsylvania. Commercial and agricultural water pumping systems may have similar characteristics but require special design considerations not included in the publication.

The clearly written guide includes drawings, diagrams and a glossary of terms used by building code officials, pump manufacturers, well drillers, plumbers and electricians. There also is a table to help determine the average amount of water used.

The publication is available from your Penn State Cooperative Extension county office. Ask for Extension Circular 376, titled "Submersible Pump Installation Guide."

Yetter System Fits Deere Flex Heads

COLCHESTER — Yetter Manufacturing recently introduced its new 6800 Pickup Reel Control System designed to fit post-1979 200 and 900 Series John Deere Flex-Heads.

Owners can economically update their existing heads to match the performance of the latest models. This simple, inexpensive control enables the combine operator to position the pickup reel forward and backward up to 13 inches on-the-go electrically to pick up down or low crops. The result is more crop harvested per acre.

With this new system, it is no longer necessary to stop, shut down the machine, climb off, and adjust the reel by hand. There is no guessing about the exact reel position because an easy-to-read indicator is included with the system, which comes ready-to-install with two easy-to-mount electric 13-inch stroke actuators, brackets, and connections.

For information, contact Yetter Mfg. Co., Colchester, Il 62326-0358.

Prevent Excess Soil Damage Using Minimum Or No-Till Methods

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — The equipment used to till, cultivate and harvest crops also contributes to yield reductions due to soil compaction, said Duane Pysher, district conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

The effect traffic has on a field may not be immediately noticeable but it does occur. Due to the weight of the machinery which is being driven over the field, the structure of the soil beneath the wheels is broken down. This disturbed structure results in reduced pore space in the soil, and increased soil denisty.

Consequently, as the years go by, zones impervious to crop roots develop, tilth is reduced, and drainage is impaired. These characteristics negatively influence your timing of planting, availability of fertilizers, effectiveness of pesticides, field trafficability, and crop yield.

To prevent excess damage to soil structure, several cultivation practices are recommended. "Of primary importance, the least soil disturbed, the better," said Pysher.

Minimum-till or no-till methods help to retain and improve soil structure in relation to regular tillage practices. These tillage methods enable the plant residues to remain in the ground.

The rotting roots leave behind new pore spaces and the decaying surface organic matter aids in increasing soil tilth. If minimum-till or no-till methods are not used, it still helps to avoid excess soil disturbance. Use a chisel plow or disk rather than a moldboard plow when possible. Try to keep your trips over the field to a minimum. Avoid going into wet fields.

The most damage can be done to the soil structure when the soil is wet. Soil has a plastic nature when wet and can easily be deformed with pressure. "This is why, of course, it is more difficult to maneuver heavy equipment in wet soils," said Pysher. "When harvesting, leave behind a heavy residue cover."

By following the above recommendations, damage to the soil structure can be reduced. "Soil is the ideal growing medium known today," said Pysher. "It took millions of years to form and is in itself a very delicate, balanced system. It is very important to protect the soil as it is used, to enable it to be used over again."

For more information on practices to reduce soil compaction as well as other soil conservation measures, contact the U.S. Soil Conservation Service at the Berks County Agricultural Center in Bern Township.

AGA Ends Year On Top

REYNOLDSBURG, OH — The year-end totals for 1989 ended on a positive note for the American Guernsey Association (AGA).

Registrations and sales increased, participation in AGA programs rose and the markets grew stronger as the year progressed, according to Erick A. Metzger, executive secretary-treasurer.

Metzger said in a statement that AGA registrations increased 5.8 percent from last year's figures. A total of 17,848 registration applications were received. Transfers also increased and went over the 7,000 mark.

Guernsey Marketing Service, the marketing division of the AGA grossed nearly $840,000 in sales. Cattle sold through GMS, privately and through sales showed an increase of 12 percent over the 1988 figures. Export sales also saw a marked increase.

The participation in AGA programs also saw a jump in numbers. Herds enrolled in the Total Performance Evaluation (TPE) program increased to 321 herds.

Strong year-end milk prices, the increasing export potential and component pricing all played a part in ending 1989 on a positive note, Metzger said in his statement. With the existing markets, 1990 also promises to be a strong year for the Guernsey breed and the AGA.

CHORE-TIME sow feeding system

Take The Hustle And Bustle Out Of Sow Feeding

2 Drop Feeders to choose from Chore Time's galvanized steel Drop Feeder (top) holds up to 6½ * lbs. of dry ground feed. Larger, polyethylene plastic Drop Feeder (bottom) holds up to 10* lbs. and can be used with high moisture corn feeds
* Weights are based on feed density of 40 lbs per cubic foot

- Saves Labor. No more hand feeding. Each time you feed, trip one lever to feed all sows at once. By using an optional time clock and automatic tripper, you can feed your sows - without being there.
- Saves Feed. With hand feeding, there's a natural tendency to over feed. This system dispenses an accurate, controlled amount each time to each sow. Feeding sows based on litter size during farrowing can also help you to realize additonal feed savings.
- Bigger, Healthier Litters. Whether you're feeding sows during gestation or farrowing, Chore-Time's Sow Feeding System allows you to control the amount of feed they consume - keeping your sows in better condition. The system also can eliminate feeding stress caused by hand feeding. The result: an extra 2 pigs per sow per year.
- Longer Sow Productive Life. Keeping sows in better condition means keeping them longer to get more litters.
- Longer Equipment Life. Each sow eats peacefully, so you can eliminate fighting and wear and tear on equipment.

An exhibit sponsored by J I Case at the 1989 Illinois Farm Bureau meeting in Chicago demonstrated the effectivenss of roll-over protective structures (ROPS) in preventing injury. Strapped into an upside-down 200 Series utility tractor, the mannequin showed the space available for the operator to survive within the protective zone provided by a ROPS.

Protective Frame Prevents Tractor Fatalities

RACINE, Wis. — Even the simplest roll-over protective structure (ROPS) can virtually eliminate the leading cause of tractor facilities, said Dale Baker, J I Case manager of safety and legislation.

But as many as 3 million tractors are in use that are not equipped with ROPS.

"About 500 people are killed in tractor overturns every year, making this type of accident the foremost occupational hazard for farmers," said Baker.

Combined with the use of seat belts, ROPS have proven 100 percent effective in preventing serious injury from tractor overturns. "A ROPS can be anything from a simple metal frame to a fully enclosed cab," said Baker. "The structure can prevent the tractor operator from being crushed beneath the machine. Properly fastened seat belts keep him or her within the zone of protection."

Cabs have also proven effective in preventing the second-most frequent type of fatal tractor accident, a fall from a moving machine. "Cabs also protect the operator from weather, dust, insects, low-hanging branches or beams, flying parts, chemicals and hydraulic fluid sprayed from ruptured lines," said Baker.

Overturns occur frequently in certain situations. These include: driving faster than conditions warrant; striking rocks, holes, and stumps; running into ditches; hitching high for extra traction; driving on steep slopes; and handling heavy loads with front-end loaders.

Tractors were offered with ROPS as optional equipment for 25 years, he said. "Many tractors now in use could be retrofitted. But homemade ROPS are not recommended," Baker said. "Because of the powerful forces involved in overturns, ROPS should meet or exceed performance standards set by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. It's wise to check with your local farm equipment dealer about equipping a tractor with ROPS."

"Exercise due caution and follow safe operation procedures as a matter of course," said Baker.

Delmarva Poultry Grower Seminar Set

GEORGETOWN, Del. — Poultry growers throughout Delmarva will gather Tuesday evening, February 20, 1990 for the 3rd annual Grower Educational Seminar sponsored by the Grower Committee of the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI).

The seminar to be held at the Delmarva Convention Center in Delmar, Maryland, will begin at 6:00 p.m. and conclude by 9:15 p.m.

A new trade show will feature suppliers of products and services to Delmarva's growers. The trade show will be open from 6:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. and during the break.

"As a service to our growers, the committee thought a trade show would be a good way for suppliers to share information about new equipment and materials," said Grower Committee Chairman Bill Bruning, a poultry grower from Snow Hill, Maryland.

Topics for the evening will include an update on animal welfare and rights issues by Dr. Richard Barczewski of the University of Delaware; liability on poultry farms as discussed by J. Frank Gordy, Jr. of Gordy Insurance Agency, Inc. in Milton, Delaware and Dr. Mary Stephenson of the University of Maryland; and proper summer poultry house ventilation presented by H. Noel Dykes of Pitman-Moore/Sterwin Labs.

"The topics and speakers have been selected by DPI's Grower Committee to present useful management information," Bruning said. The seminar, which is open to all growers free of charge, has attracted hundreds of participants in its first two years.

CHELATION THERAPY

THIS MAY BE YOUR ANSWER TO: Heart Problems, High Blood Pressure, Poor Circulation, Arthritis, Diabetes, Leg Cramps, Numbness, Tingling, Cold Hands And Feet & Atherosclerosis.

All of these conditions may be helped by Golden Pride Formula #1. This aids in removing approximately 50 detrimental factors including lead, mercury and calcium deposits from the arteries. It may lower triglycerides and cholesterol.

This chelated formula called Golden Pride Formula #1 is available in a pleasant-tasting form containing honey, royal jelly, bee pollen and the chelating agent EDTA. Start to erase years of damage to your system. Good nutrition can eleviate many health problems. The following are just a few testimonies of some of the many persons using Golden Pride Products.

Dear Golden Pride:
On February 13, 1981 at almost age 50, I suffered a severe heart attack. I went into cardiac arrest and was brought back by the paramedic and again in the emergency room. While in the hospital, I had a second attack and a third after returning home. I entered the hospital again and was sent to a larger hospital for tests. The tests showed one artery 99% blocked and another 20% blocked. There was alot of heart damage and was told bypass would not benefit me. They also told me I had ulcers which my wife suspected I had. While in the hospital, (an infection developed in my heart). In June, I went back to work as a road grader operator even though the doctors thought I wouldn't be able to. My heart had such irregular rhythm that my blood pressure would get so low I couldn't stand. In 1983, I was hospitalized in September, October, and December because of this. They found the 20% blockage was now 75% which was probably the cause of my constant chest pain. In April 1988, my doctor found I had diabetes. My sugar was 335. I was put on two insulin shots a day. I had been feeling so bad for so long that at night I prayed I would not wake up in the morning. My legs would ache at night and feel so cold I couldn't sleep at night. Two black spots appeared on my leg about the size of a half dollar. I had a knot under each arm which the doctor said were abscesses and would probably have to be cut out. In August 1988, a man on my grader route...a Golden Pride distributor, gave me Formula #1 and Formula #7. I began to take it and it has worked miracles for me. The chest pain is gone; I can lift as much as I can without pain. The spots are almost gone and one abscess is gone and other almost gone. Thanks to God and Golden Pride, I feel better than I have felt in years. The amount of insulin I take is much lower and my sugar is at a good level. I have cut down on my heart and ulcer medicine. I have also cut the medicine from four to two tablets for my cholesterol and my test in November showed it to be 189. If I had had Golden Pride years before, I believe I would have never had these helath problems.

Ally Yuppies May Help US Exports

WASHINGTON — Barbecuing in Bonn? Tasting tacos in Turin? Sipping seltzer in Seville? Yuppie food trends have invaded Europe, creating opportunities for U.S. food exporters.

The marketing niche of young, urban professionals that originated in the United States has spread to Europe. There, young and affluent consumers in Rome, Paris and Madrid, like their U.S. counterparts, are being targeted by marketers for their upscale conspicuous consumption and bulging wallets.

Can this market segment translate into larger U.S. food sales among Europe's yuppies? Several U.S. agricultural attaches stationed in Europe recently surveyed the market to find out. Since young, upwardly mobile professionals are trend setters, often the first to try a new food, knowing what European yuppies are consuming today has value for U.S. food marketers tomorrow.

"The appeal of American foods to Europe's yuppies varies from country to country," according to Mark Condon, trade specialist with USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service who has managed several U.S. pavilions for USDA trade exhibits in Europe. "For example, U.S. food exports to Germany usually are compatible with German food traditions," said Condon. "West Germans remain fairly traditional, nationalistic eaters, even though the concept of eating cuisines from other countries is taking hold."

While many of America's affluent young professionals are clamoring for Italian cuisine and pasta makers, Italy's yuppies are looking to the United States for their trends. "In Milan, Italy's capital of fashion chic, the current rage is ethnic food, especially Tex-Mex foods," said Frank Piason, U.S. agricultural counselor in Rome. "Hard though it may be to believe in the land of pasta, a Milanese yuppie considers an enchilada or taco to be 'molto in.' And some U.S. companies have recognized a potentially lucrative market in this sector," said Piason.

To help U.S. exporters in the Italian market, Piason recently conducted a retail survey and found that there are many U.S. foods with potential in the Italian market, including Tex-Mex foods, corn chips, herbal teas, dried fruits and nuts and even wine. U.S. wine promotions, particularly for California wines, are popular with Italy's yuppies.

California wines are popular with affluent young consumers in France as well, according to Holly Higgins, who recently completed a two-year assignment as the U.S. agricultural attache in Paris. "While trying to sell U.S. wines in France might seem like bringing coals to Newcastle, the French are actually fascinated with U.S. wines," Higgins said. France is a good market for launching other upscale foods and beverages, said Higgins, because French consumers are willing to spend a larger percentage of their incomes to buy gourmet and luxury foods.

Lifestyle changes also are fueling demand for such products as microwaveable foods. Higgins pointed out that good marketing combined with innovative packaging could add up to big sales for U.S. exporters in this sector of the French food market because the French consider the United States to be the world leader in microwaveable food technology.

While French yuppies are microwaving, their German counterparts are firing up the barbecue grill and flocking to the pizza market, according to Dale Good, U.S. agricultural trade officer in Hamburg, West Germany. "Yuppies are among the better traveled consumers," said Good, "which suggests a greater interest in foreign food products."

Elsewhere on the continent, the influence of young affluent professionals has spread to Spain. Dave Mergen, U.S. agricultural attache in Madrid, reports that Spanish yuppies like to drink mineral water and fruit juices. One thing that has heightened the awareness of U.S. foods among Spain's yuppies is the opening of several Madrid restaurants with names such as "Boston" and "Hollywood" that serve American food.

The yuppie brigade is marching on the British market, too. "In-style foods for U.K. yuppies are those that offer something different from the traditional British fare," said Chris Chapman, agricultural marketing specialist with the U.S. agricultural trade office in London. A few examples of "in" foods are alligator steaks and cajun and Creole cooking, she said. American wines also are favorites with British yuppies.

Whatever the European country, several preferences emerge when discussing yuppie food tastes. These include high quality, convenience and innovation. "These qualities are part of the market of the future," said Mark Condon. "In our upcoming food exhibits in Europe, we have many kinds of products that would appeal to yuppies." Condon said such items include low-calorie and low-fat health foods, nonalcoholic beers, hickory chips for barbecuing, ethnic foods, "picture-perfect" produce, California wines and foods with no preservatives or additives.

The same trends Condon sees in the United States — single-person household, more working women and the popularity of convenience foods, such as frozen and microwaveable products — are becoming more important in Europe. "In most of the exhibits I'm managing this year, convenience foods are the most sought-after product lines," he said.

City Trees Need Help

NAZARETH (Northampton Co.) P If you have trees on your street, property values rise and utility bills shrink. Trees make our neighborhoods and towns look better and psychologists extol their positive effect on our emotions. Unfortunately, many of Pennsylvania's street trees are dying.

*Most of these trees were planted when our towns and cities were just starting; before paved streets, sidewalks, sewers and water pipes were installed:, said Dr. Henry Gerhold, professor of forest genetics at Penn State. To make way for progress, branches, tops and roots had to be cut, making the trees unattractive and more susceptible to disease.

Gerhold is a driving force behind the Municipal Tree Restoration Program, a cooperative effort of the Bureau of Foresty, Penn State, power companies and local communities to improve the appearance and health of urban trees and in some cases to replace them. Now entering its fourth year, the program helps local communities improve their street trees through education and technical assistance.

A successful tree care program begins with careful analysis of the planting site. It is necessary to examine the conditions, including roads, utility lines, soil and amount and types of air pollutants. Once it's known what kind of environment will be used for planting in, you can choose the kind of tree best suited to those conditions.

Choosing the right tree for an urban area is a complex task, even for experienced arborists. The most difficult part of the choice is interpreting biological information about the many different types of trees available. A good or bad choice will affect the appearance, health and cost of maintaining the tree for a long, long time.

To make that task easier, the tree restoration program recently published a collection of street tree factssheets which provide characteristics and color photographs of 122 different trees, all well-suited to the northern U.S. and Canada. Forest scientists, arborists and nursery workers from many states helped compile and collect information on different species and varieties. The USDA Forest Service provided financial support.

The factsheets summarize the advantages and limitations of each tree, describing appropriate site conditions and proper planting and tree care. The trees are classified according to their *hardiness zones:, a figure used to indicate the northern and southern limits of a tree's optimum environmental conditions.

The information included in the publication is especially applicable to planting trees in towns and cities. Street trees were our main concern because they require the most careful selection in relation to stressful sites, space constraints and maintenance. But the factsheets are also very useful in selecting trees for a less severe site, like a front yard.

Each factsheet includes the tree's common and scientific names, height and width, shape, foliage type, flowers and fruit, as well as a description of the appearance and .other noteworthy features of the tree. Space left after each entry allows for notes and personal observations, while the publication's loose-leaf binder format makes it easy to add information gleaned from other sources.

The factsheets are color-coded by tree size, enabling users to quickly find a tree that won't be too tall or short for the available space. For example, only short trees between 25 and 40 feet should be planted beneath utility lines, To find a short or medium-sized tree, look at the entries coded green or green and yellow. If a taller tree is needed, those coded red are more appropriate.

The publication Street Tree Factsheets is available for $17.50 from the Publications Distribution Center, 112 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802, or by calling (814) 865-6713.

Ag Success: Recognizing 'Pressure Points'

READING (Berks Co.) P A sophisticated approach to business thinking has helped a Mount Joy entrepreneur expand his business more than a hundredfold since he started it in 1960. His story appears in the current edition of The Ag Letter, a quarterly newsletter published by Meridian Bank.

In 1960, Harold Esbenshade became an egg producer with a flock of 3,000 birds. Today, Esbenshade's Shady Brae Egg Farm is home to 320,000 laying hens at a time.

Esbenshade says a lot of the business growth occurred as he responded to "pressure points." One such pressure point was the scarcity of labor to gather eggs from nests by hand. That led to automated nests, and ultimately to highly automated laying houses, where birds are fed and their eggs gathered almost without human intervention.

At Shady Brae, Ted Esbenshade, Harold's son, operates the 320,000-layer house with the help of just one full-time employee. It takes eight employees to inspect, clean, and package the eggs so they're ready to go to market.

Esbenshade thinks the egg industry will continue to respond to the labor pressure with more automation but will have to deal with other issues such as manure disposal, which he considers to be the industry's biggest problem.

In the same issue of the Ag Letter, William D. Hughes, Meridian's vice president for agribusiness lending, discusses the impact of technology on the egg business with John Schwartz, a poultry specialist with the Lancaster County office of the Penn State extension. Lancaster County has nearly half the laying hens in Pennsylvania.

Blaine Fessler, a Meridian agribusiness lending officer, predicts in the same issue of the Ag Letter that in the near future, more Pennsylvania's laying hens will be owned by feed companies and other agribusinesses, rather than by the farmers who raise them. The farmers will stay in business, but they will produce eggs under contract to businesses which supply the birds and the feed and who market the eggs.

When they put their birds under contract, these farmers will lose some of their market opportunities, but they will protect themselves from the often radical swings in the egg market.

The Ag Letter is published quarterly by Meridian Bank for farmers and agribusinesses in Meridian's market area. For more information about the issues covered in the latest edition, or to receive a free copy, call the Agribusiness Lending Department at (800) 222-2150.

Eastern Milk Producers Increase Production Bonus

SAYRACUSE, N.Y.— Eastern Milk Producers, a dairy cooperative with nearly 3,000 member farmers in nine states, is tripling its 1990 cash bonus for extra milk production.

Eastern President Lewis Gardner, a dairy farmer from Galeton, explained that the bonus increase is an effort to boost production in the milk-short Northeast.

"We not only have a deficit situation," he said, "but a deficit situation that is exaggerated" because of the region's historically low per-cow production rate, as compared to other parts of the country.

Gardner said eastern hopes the special bonus will attract new members to the cooperative way of doing business.

Also, he said, "Eastern wants to be a leader" in encouraging farmers to better their production rate without the necessity and expense of expanding their physical plant.

The new bonus will be paid monthly on milk produced in excess of the same month last year.

This bonus, also called a cash premium, ranges from 35 cents per hundred pounds of milk in the spring flush months to $3 per hundredweight in the fall.

The program pays the highest in the fall because, Gardner said, historically that's the lowest production period of the year.

Previously Eastern paid $1 per hundredweight in the fall, and paid no premium for production increases in the spring.

The premiums for the winter and summer months also are being tripled, going from 25 cents to 75 cents per hundredweight, and from 50 cents to $1.50 per hundredweight.

"For us to maintain a strong marketing base, we have to be able to meet our customers' demand for more milk," Gardner said.

Headquartered in Syracuse, N.Y., Eastern owns two cheese plants in New York's Southern Tier, which are leased to Leprino Foods, a leading manufacturer of mozzarella in the U.S. Also, Eastern operates a New England office in Montpelier, Vt.; a balancing plant in Grover; and milk receiving stations in Dover, Del., Sunbury, and Hinesburg, Vt.

The co-op also owns two subsidiaries: Eastern Laboratory Services, a commercial testing facility in South Waverly, and Eastern Best Products, which operates dairy stores in New York and Pennsylvania, and a rural bulk-buying service with truck routes serving over 30,000 customers in a dozen states.

Farm Transfer Meeting to Examine Alternatives

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The orderly and planned transfer of an operating business involves more than property and goods. It provides for the transfer and development of skills and management abilities to maintain the smooth operation and profitability of the business, while usually minimizing the tax consequences of the transfer.

The overview of 1990 farm transfer meeting will be held March 8 at 7:30 p.m. at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. The meeting will look at the components of a business and draw upon farm examples to examine the similarities, differences, advantages, and disadvantages of alternative methods of farm transfer.

The meeting will include talks by Alan W. Strock, farm management extension agent for Lancaster and Chester counties; Roland Freund, farm management extension agent for Cumberland, Franklin, Adams, and York counties; and a local attorney.

The following topics will be discussed:

- Setting goals for a farm transfer - family fortune or feud?
- Potential transfer options available for farmers before and/or after death, (i.e.) sale, gift, will, or a combination.
- Transferring the operation and management to the next generation.
- Transferring the real estate to the next generation.
- Advantages and disadvantages of transfer vehicles such as partnerships, joint ventures, corporations, and rental agreements.
- The use of operating agreements to transfer assets to the next generation.
- Family security agreements and installment sales.
- Parent agreements, partnerships, contracts, and corporations.
- Allowable interest rates set by IRS.

The meeting is designed to help you understand the transfer process; evaluate your situation and your present and future business arrangements; decide which transfer option(s) and/or vehicle(s) is right for your family; and gather the information that your professional team will need to efficiently help you transfer your estate.

No registration is needed.

Penn State publications concerning estate settlement, rental guidelines, and partnership formulation will be available for those attending the meeting.

Self-Esteem Defined And Developed

We hear so much about self-esteem and the importance it plays in our children's lives. But just what does self-esteem mean and how does it develop in our children?

Self-esteem may be defined in many ways, but one very useful definition states that it is an individual's feeling of self-worth. In other words, it's the value we place on something. When applied to the child, it is the parents' appraisal of the child. From the child's perception, it is how one sees himself or herself.

How then is the self-esteem developed? Many people and institutions play a part in shaping the individual's self-esteem. The school system is one place where children's self-esteem is shaped through its daily evaluation via grades, rules, and classes where children either get lost in the masses or find their niche and feel okay. Society-at-large also influences children's perception of themselves. If a child is different somehow, either because of ethnic or racial minority, handicap, or in some other way different from the majority of society, they may learn from society: "You should be someone you're not." Of course parents, being closest to their children, probably have the greatest influence which can be frightening! How we, as parents, respond to our children and what are our attitudes are the child's primary source of feelings of self-worth. At home it is important to promote self-esteem every day. It is not a process to be completed and finished. It is a style of life.

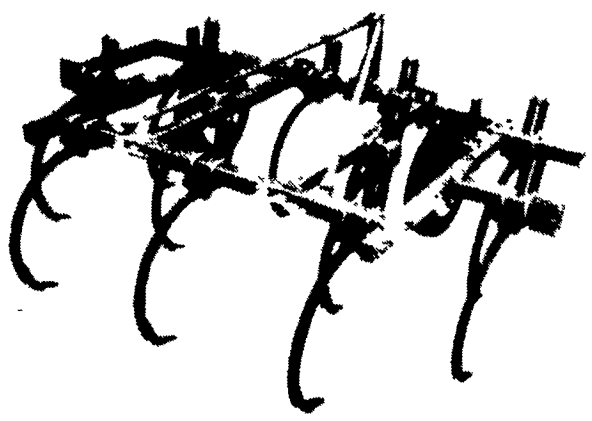
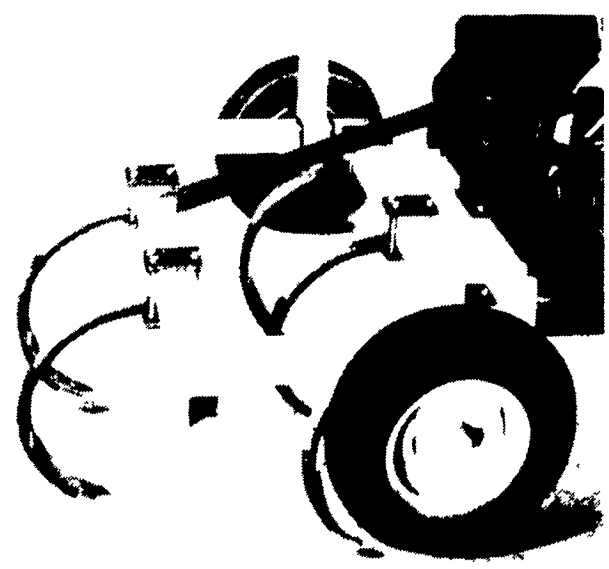
MOUNTED CHISEL PLOWS



The CPP series of mounted models enables you to turn short and fast... to transport easily, utilizing your tractor's hydraulic system. One universal hitch accommodates Category II or III tractors with three-point hitch or Quick Coupler. Eight widths — from 7 to 16 feet. CPP models are equipped with either 1"x2"x26" shanks or 1¼ "x2"x 36" shanks. The CPP-11, shown above, is equipped with spring mounted shanks, regular reversible chisel points and optional gauge wheels.



The Brillion 2-bar Chisel Plow was designed for medium horsepower tractors in the 40-75 h.p. range. The frame accommodates either five or seven 1"x2"x26" shanks. Two types of ground working points are available: chisel points for fast, easy penetration and reduced draft or twisted shovels that roll the soil and mix it with field trash. Mounting is for Category II tractors, 3-point hitch or Quick Coupler.

   b. By yourself with your own or rented equipment.
   c. Or other more conventional methods.
2. APPLICATION - To insure better adherence to this super prepared surface, use the best fine bristle brush in four directions to evenly distribute the recommended mil thickness of seal coat coverage.
3. SPECIALIZATION - Every barn is different but generally it's best to use a high quality mildew resistant product, specially formulated to meet the requirements of this partially weathered wood that was and will be weather stressed.
4. WARNING - The modified oil latex is less effective as a wood preserver and actually increases nail & metal deterioration. Deal with home people. At their rates, I could double mine.
